Work To Begin Monday

The Northwestern Pacific Railroad yesterday announced that it has awarded a contract to the Morrison-Knudsen construction firm to re-build the Puerto Suello Tunnel in San Rafael.

Work will begin Monday, according to NWP vice-president and general manager Charges E. Neal.

The announcement confirmed last week's statement by Southern Pacific Co., parent firm of NWP, that it had abandoned its five-year fight against restoring service on the San Rafael rail line.

NO PRICE SET

No sum of money was mentioned in Neal's announcement. He said the contract was awarded "on a contingency basis," meaning the construction firm would not decide how much to charge until it learned more about conditions inside the tunnel.

The California Public Utilities Commission ordered the railroad to start work March 3, a deadline which NWP met by sending in its own survey and cleanup crews. The PUC gave the railroad 180 days to re-open the line.

CITY TO HELP

San Rafael City Mgr. Dan E. Andersen said he and City Engineer Ely Caillouette Jr. will meet at noon Tuesday with representatives of Morrison-Knudsen and the railroad to work out details of whatever coordination is needed to avoid traffic problems and other complications while the work is under way.

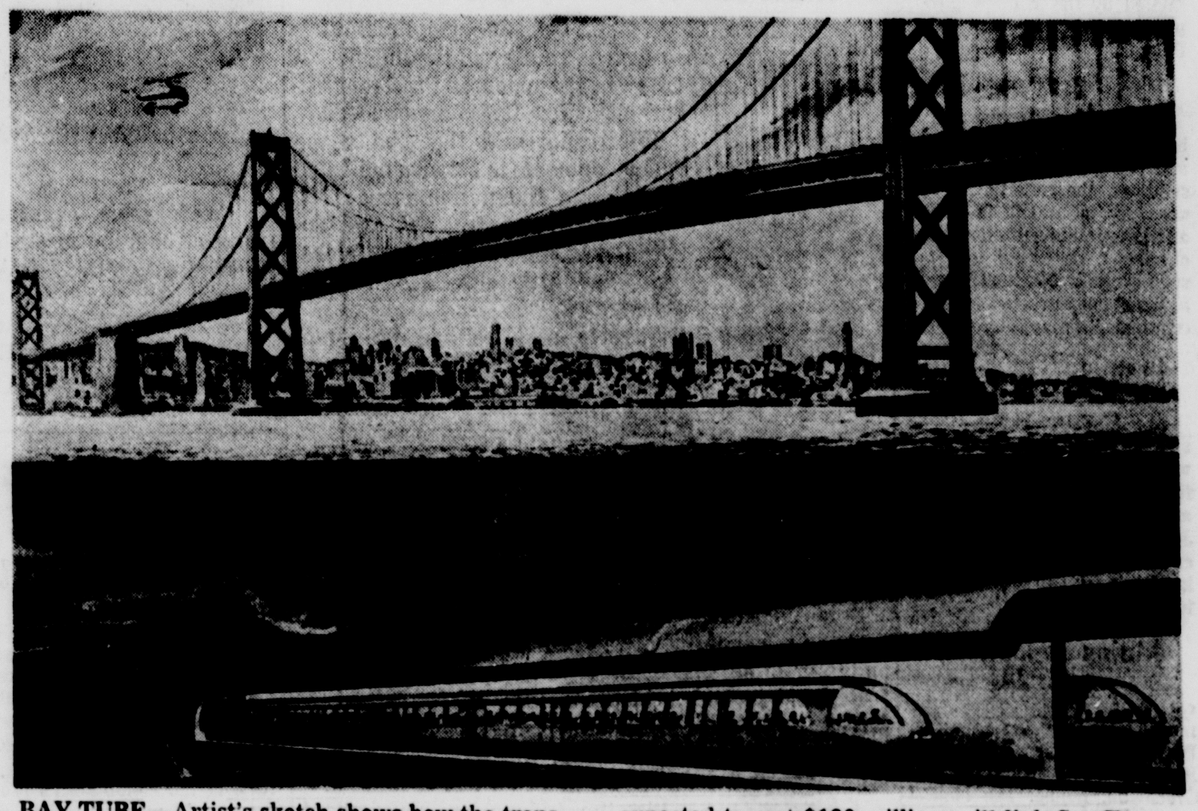

Andersen said he expects to know more about the construction firm's plans after the meeting.

NWP officials decided shortly after the 1961 fire that they would not re-open the tunnel unless they had to. The railroad fought through the Interstate Commerce Commission and the federal courts in an effort to abandon the tunnel permanently, but found itself faced with constant opposition from San Rafael and Marin County, and lost every round. Attorney Boris H. Lakusta handled the legal fight for the city and county.

During the course of ICC hearings, the railroad mentioned figures ranging from $800,000 to $1,200,000 in estimating the cost of restoring the line through the tunnel.

A previous deadline set forth by the PUC for rebuilding the Preliminary work will include demolition of ferryboat slips at both ends of the planned crossing. (UPI Telephoto)

County May Make Major Changes In Park Bonds

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Marin County officials yesterday went back to the drawing board with the $4.3 million park bond proposal set for June 7.

County Administrator Alan Bruce called for a special session of the county parks and recreation commission after hearing considerable opposition to the plan, which came to a head Wednesday when the county park and recreation commission concluded there was not much correlation between the proposed allocation of funds to cities and districts and the needs of those cities and districts.

Bruce said an alternative proposal will be put to the board of supervisors by April 8. That is the deadline for revising the bond resolution approved by the supervisors earlier.

Bruce said the total of the proposed bond issue could be quite different in the new plan.

He emphasized that further discussions must be held, but said he and his staff will probably propose that each park project—including those in cities and districts as well as the unincorporated areas — will be spelled out in the proposal.

Under the present plan, $2.3 million of the money would be distributed to cities and districts on a population basis regardless of needs, available land or park plans.

Bruce also said his alternative proposal might suggest putting state bond funds, two sources of federal funds available to Marin and the county bond money all into one package for distribution to projects.

State bond funds for Marin are presently earmarked for projects in unincorporated territories. The federal grants are made on a matching basis with state or county funds.

Bruce said a special meeting of the parks and recreation commission will have to be called to beat the April 8 deadline.

His proposal is expected to answer complaints such as those from Larkspur, where a city bond issue is also contemplated to raise funds for a $800,000 park. The county bonds would have put up only $129,000 for the city, and city officials did not think they could ask voters to approve city bonds after a county bond election.

A concept such as "general use park" (meaning it would serve residents of the whole county) would have to be established to decide what projects would qualify in the county bond program.

Conceivably, he said, all the funds needed for the 50-acre Larkspur park could be provided under the new plan.

Contract Set For BART'S Tube In Bay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Work on Bay Area Rapid Transit's $89.9 million, four-mile tube under San Francisco Bay is expected to begin next week and be completed in 38 months.

The contract for the work was signed yesterday by Trans-Bay Constructors, a joint venture involving four firms. The work excludes approaches, which will add another $90 million to the cost.

The tube, which B. R. Stokes, general manager of the transit district, says is the "key link" in the 75-mile rail network, will sink to a maximum depth of 133 feet below the surface.

The tube runs between San Francisco and the East Bay.

Members of the joint venture, include Peter Kiewit Sons Co., of Omaha; Raymond International Inc., of New York; Tidewater Construction Corp., of Norfolk, Va., and Healy-Tibbitts Construction Co. of San Francisco.

Ousted General Returns As Viet Unrest Continues

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAIGON — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi returned tonight to Da Nang where student and soldier protests against his ouster as the 1st Corps commander spread throughout South Viet Nam.

Students angered at his ouster by the ruling military junta seized government radio stations in three major cities to broadcast demands for his reinstatement.

An "orderly demonstration" also was reported last night in Quang Ngai, the capital of the province of the same name. The demonstrations were "fair sized" but further details were not available.

There was no explanation of Thi's abrupt return to Da Nang. He flew there shortly after Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan formally took over as 1st Corps commander in the face of condemnation by Buddhist leaders of the government's action.

In the second day of protests more than 2,000 students and soldiers waved banners and pleaded their case for Thi in Da Nang and Hoi An.

Jungle cover in the south and bad weather in the north slowed down the allied ground and air offensives against the Communists today.

U. S. Marines, infantry, airborne and air cavalry troops with allied support were unable to rout the Viet Cong from areas where they had taken cover after two weeks of punishing blows on the ground and from the air.

U. S. Air Force and Navy carrier plane attacks on North Viet Nam's supply lines were held to a minimum. The overcast was so dense that only radar-guided drops could be made and it was impossible to assess bomb damage.

In the civil crisis, the students took over radio stations in Hue, Hoi An and Da Nang without opposition. In all three cases they walked in, broadcast their demands and then walked out, returning the stations to normal operations.

Four Vietnamese rangers guarding the Da Nang station withdrew before the students arrived and sympathetic station personnel allowed the students to broadcast their protest and report the demonstration. Then the radio returned to normal operations.

The American officials felt a great deal will depend on how

Unification Proposal Disapproved

The "Tamalpais-Tomales" unification plan which would have split the Tamalpais High School District was unanimously disapproved yesterday by the State Board of Education in Los Angeles.

The board voted 6 to 0 against the proposal which had been recommended by the Marin County Committee on School District Organization. Dr. Miguel Montes of Los Angeles, recently appointed to the board, abstained.

The proposal was presented to the board by Dr. Ronald Cox, associate state superintendent of schools, who said that although the Tamalpais district would be split, he felt there were "exceptional circumstances to justify the proposals."

Also speaking in favor of the plan were county committee chairman Rachael Conner and committee member Galen Williams.

Opposing speakers included Dr. John Siemens of the Tamal-

League Hears Zucker Talk On Planning

Marin County's new planning director, Paul C. Zucker, last night told members of the Marin Conservation League that no one yet has solved the problems of urban development, but that Marin is trying to find a solution.

He asked league members, at the 32nd annual meeting of the group, at the new Student Center of the College of Marin, to keep an open mind about planning in the next few years, while changes are made in the county planning department and ordinances.

The members voted to support the $4.3 million county park bond issue, to go before voters on the June 7 ballot.

President Mary A. Summers reviewed the history of the league, noting that unlike such organizations as the Marin Development Foundation or Marin Visitors Bureau, the Conservation League has collected money from its members and given it to the county, rather than using county money for its activities.

Two new directors were elected, Aline McClain of Mill Valley and David Van Pelt of Nicasio. Directors will meet April 18 to choose new officers for the year.

I-J Classified Department Gets New Office, Telephone

Larger, more convenient facilities and a new telephone number for classified advertisements will go into service Monday when the Independent-Journal opens its expanded classified ad office.

The office is at the corner of Fifth Avenue and B Street. Its telephone number is 453-4000.

Remodeling of the former Dorothy Kell furniture store to house this and other departments of the I-J was one phase of the I-J's major expansion program which began with addition of a new 84-page press in September and construction of a building to house it.

The new telephone number means that calls to place classified ads will go directly into the new office without being handled by the main I-J switchboard. A separate switchboard and other new telephone equipment has been installed to route the ads quickly, according to classified advertising Mgr. Carl Lehman.

The new office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Viet Money Bill Cuts Congress Power, GOP Leaders Complain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republicans charged today President Johnson's $13.1 billion emergency Viet Nam military appropriation bill was a milestone toward loss of congressional control over the defense budget.

Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., a key GOP member, said the appropriation bill could open the way for unlimited spending on the Viet Nam war. The bill is up for House action Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the Johnson administration said it will offer no bombproof havens to North Vietnamese Communists, who could boost their troop strength in the South by 50 per cent during 1966.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey outlined the "no sanctuaries" policy in a speech yesterday, while other administration spokesmen made it clear supply routes would continue to be primary targets for air attacks.

Attacks on other targets—such as ports and airfields—would come only "to prevent the success of aggression" and then "only with such power as required" to stall a stepped up Communist drive, Humphrey said.

GOP members of a defense appropriations subcommittee which approved the appropriation measure yesterday in the House without making a single change in Johnson's requests aired their views in a minority report to the House. They said they supported the bill but deplored the way it was considered.

They accused the Defense Department of suppressing contrary views of high ranking officers or consistently understating true needs.

They charged the Defense Department had used appropriated funds for purposes other than the ones for which Congress provided them.

Laird, one of the three-man minority on the defense subcommittee, contended that language in the money bill in effect gives Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara authority to throw the entire defense budget into the Viet Nam fighting.

"This is a much broader resolution, as far as financing the war in Viet Nam is concerned, than the resolution passed by the 88th Congress," Laird told members of the House Rules Committee.

He referred to the resolution

Gemini Crew Licks Obstacle

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The Gemini 2 astronauts overcame a spacecraft hatch-closing problem today and a mission review board gave a go-ahead for launching on Tuesday.

Astronauts Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott were summoned to the Gemini launch complex today when technicians experienced some difficulty closing the hatch that Scott will open to take a two and one-half hour space walk during the three-day flight.

Scott practiced closing the hatch today and after awhile said he was satisfied he would have no trouble doing it in space weightlessness.

A mission review board considered all factors of the launching this morning and said there were no foreseeable barriers to a Tuesday blastoff.

Indonesian Communists Banned

Suharto

Informants said that the shape of developments in Jakarta indicated Suharto, the Indonesian army chief, was firmly in control and that Sukarno, now apparently only a figurehead, had little chance of staging a comeback.

Suharto said he had no intention of moving Indonesia's political outlook either to the right or extreme left.

"It's already left," Suharto told a meeting of high government officials at Sukarno's palace. Parts of the proceedings were taped and broadcast over the Indonesian government radio.

Subandrio

Sukarno said he was ordering Suharto to take control of the country and to maintain peace and order.

Reliable sources said the pro-Peferred to Subandrio as first deputy premier, Subandrio, had been dismissed and had left Indonesia.

Sukarno

But the Indonesian government radio said Subandrio attended the meeting at Sukarno's palace and referred toSubarandrio as first deputy premier.

Suharto reportedly is a firm supporter of former Defense Minister Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution whom Sukarno dismissed last month. Suharto's appointment indicated that army forces loyal to Nasution had decided to move against Subandrio and Sukarno in response to violent student demonstrations, the sources said.

Spy Scandal Rocks Canada

OTTAWA (AP)—Liberal Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson has dared the Conservative opposition to try to throw him out of power over the alleged security scandal involving a German beauty queen and former Conservative Cabinet members.

Gerta

Over angry roars from the opposition in Parliament, Pearson said last night he had ordered a secret, full-scale judicial inquiry into the case, which threatens to explode into a scandal as big as the Profumo affair that rocked Britain.

Pearson indicated that the inquiry will examine charges made last Thursday by his justice minister, Lucien Cardin, that Cabinet members under the Conservative regime of ex-Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker were linked with Gerda Munsinger. Cardin said she was a former Communist spy.

Sevigny

"If you don't like it — (the inquiry)," Pearson said, "you can vote no confidence in us Monday and throw us out."

Diefenbaker

Although Cardin had said Mrs. Munsinger was dead, the Toronto Star said one of its reporters had located her alive in Munich, Germany, and she had named former Associate Defense Minister Pierre Sevigny as her "close companion."

Sevigny, who held the post in the Diefenbaker government in 1959-63, told newsmen in Montreal he had met Mrs. Munsinger socially but did not consider her a security risk.

With his wife standing beside him, Sevigny said: "I met Mrs. Munsinger at a party during the month of August 1959. I saw her socially a few times during the next few months and our relationship was just that, a social one."

Diefenbaker, away on a fishing trip, fired off a statement saying that Cardin's remarks were "a cowardly and slanderous attack bearing the imprint of McCarthyism."

Brown Turns Lawmakers Loose On Constitutional Revisions

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature, when it resumes Monday, may begin work on revising the state's 80,000-word, often- amended Constitution along the lines recommended by a special commission.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown agreed yesterday to open up the special session to the subject of constitutional revision.

The governor's action pleased the Assembly, which earlier unanimously requested him to put the matter on the special call. But it displeased several key senators who considered constitutional revision too hot to handle this year.

The commission, headed by Orange County Superior Court Judge Bruce Sumner, proposed sweeping revisions in the state's basic law.

A key provision would permit the legislators to set their own salaries and meet in annual general sessions. At the present time, the lawmakers' pay is fixed in the Constitution at $6,000 a year.

General sessions, in which the lawmakers themselves decide what subjects will be considered, are now held only in odd-numbered years. In even-numbered years, the Legislature considers only the state budget and those subjects which the governor wishes to place on the special agenda.

Brown did not authorize consideration of all the proposals of the 69-member revision commission. He excluded those dealing with the executive branch of government and civil service.

But he did permit debate of the suggestions dealing with the separation of powers, the Legislature and the judiciary.

If the Senate and Assembly can agree on proposed revisions, the measures will go on the ballot this fall for ratification by the voters. A constitutional change must be approved by a two-thirds vote in each house.

Brown decided to add the matter to the agenda after weeks of conflicting pressures.

He said he fully supported the proposals dealing with legislators' pay and legislative sessions. He said annual general sessions "will provide better government."

But he coupled his endorsement of a pay raise with a call for new legislation to outlaw conflicts between legislators' public duty and private financial interests.

"I firmly believe that improvements in legislative salaries, which could be achieevd by the constitutional changes, should be accompanied by legislation which will clear up problems of conflict of interest," he said in a prepared document.

"These problems continue to plague our legislators, many of whom now have outside business interests and clients who sometimes are directly affected by actions of the Legislature. Those conflicts should be resolved."

FBI Tracks Down Vacaville Escaper—On Honeymoon

Ralph Dwayne Owen, 25, was taken into custody as he returned to a rented duplex in East Kansas City. He was living under the name of Tommy Harthun with his bride of a week. The FBI declined to identify his wife.

Owen and Charles Lorin Gove, 40, are accused of taking off on a cross-country crime spree after their escape from the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, Oct. 31, 1965. Gove was arrested in New Orleans Feb. 16.

Owen was arraigned after his arrest before a U.S. commissioner and jailed. Disposition of his bride and her teen-age brother, living with them, was not announced.

Two days after their escape from Vacaville, accomplished by prying open a steel frame window and cutting through three chain-link fences, Owen and Gove ambushed and disarmed two pursuing California sheriff's deputies, then fled in the officers' jeep.

On Nov. 7 the two fugitives allegedly held three women and a child captive in a Napa County, Calif., ranch home, looted it and took the family's car.

The FBI said Owen and Gove also are suspected of robbing a Cold Springs, Ky., bank of $6,800 on Nov. 23, then again of $14,500 on Dec. 13. Gove has been identified by Edward P. Schug, president of the Cass County Bank in Peculiar, Mo., of robbing that bank of $6,300 Jan. 3.

Owen was unarmed, and offered no resistance. A shotgun, rifle and a revolver were found in the duplex, Karl W. Dissly, special agent in charge of the FBI in Kansas City, said.

Owen had gained 20 pounds since his escape and was wearing his hair long, Dissly said.

Cuban Exiles See Major Shift Ahead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Refugees arriving by daily airlift from Cuba say there is a widespread feeling in their homeland that "something big" is going to happen.

"Nearly everybody has the impression there is great discontent within Fidel Castro's armed forces," said Jacinto Gutierrez, 43.

Others among 161 Cubans who arrived here yesterday to start a new life in exile nodded agreement.

News of the arrest and sentencing of Rolando Cubelas, former high Cuban army officer, for plotting to assassinate Castro has been the conversation piece in Cuba, the refugees said.

But Gutierrez, who lived four blocks from the University of Havana, said he saw no demonstrations on the campus. Rumors that there had been some in support of Cubelas had circulated in the exile colony here.

Brown In Washington To Retrieve Money

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown left yesterday for a four-day visit to Washington where he was expected to seek release of about $200 million in urban renewal funds.

The money was cut off when Proposition 14 nullified state anti - discrimination laws in housing.

Doctor Tells Red Casualty Ruse

WASHINGTON (AP) — Viet Cong soldiers sometimes go into battle with vines wrapped around their legs so they can be dragged off quickly if killed or wounded.

And, a U.S. Army doctor reports, a hook like that used by stevedores is sometimes employed. "This is inserted under the chin and serves as another dragging device," Capt. Arthur M. Ahearn wrote in the official journal of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States.

Ahearn, who served in Viet Nam and is now stationed at San Antonio, Tex., said the Viet Cong quickly removes dead and wounded from the battlefield to keep "important sources of intelligence" from allied hands.

Army Man Wounded In Dixie City

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — Police and FBI agents searched today for a gunman who shot and wounded a Negro Army captain home on leave.

A group of citizens in Bogalusa, scene of a long civil rights struggle, offered a $2,500 reward for information leading to the conviction of the man who shot Capt. Donald R. Sims, 29, of nearby Sun.

Sims, who was to go to Viet Nam after his leave, was hit in the shoulder yesterday with a 22-caliber bullet, which lodged in his neck. He was hospitalized in New Orleans, where his condition was reported satisfactory.

Sims was not in uniform as he used a public telephone booth in a service station. The bullet smashed through the front window.

Asst. Police Chief L.C. Terrell said the shot was fired at close range. He said he believed there were "no racial overtones" in the shooting.

Peace Candidate Raps Opportunism

A candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress characterized his party last night as an opportunistic machine more interested in votes than values.

Phillip Drath, San Rafael contractor and civil rights champion gave that appraisal to some 125 persons at a meeting at the Civic Center sponsored by the Women's League for Peace and Freedom. He is running for nomination in the First Congressional District.

Speaking of the Democratic Party on both the national and local level, Drath said, "What they want, they say, is a winner and they don't care what the winner stands for."

Drath said the party doesn't want a candidate "to come out and make a stand" on issues, because "they think he won't get elected if he does."

He pointed to the seriousness of the world situation and said it is vital in a democracy for candidates to make their position clear to the people so that the people can decide intelligently.

Drath, who has repeatedly made clear his opposition to the war in Viet Nam and his scorn for what he calls an unrealistic fear of communism, said this fear will lead us into future intervention in the affairs of other countries.

"With our present kind of thinking," he said, "we'll inevitably get involved in revolutions all over the world, particularly in South America, because of fear of some kind of Communist takeover."

Drath described himself as the "winner the Democrats are looking for, if they could realize it. The people want someone who says what he stands for."

He described Congressman Don H. Clausen, the Republican incumbent, as "working for the lumber barons and not for the people in the northern part of this state."

Said Drath, "Clausen's idea of a national redwood park would be a strip of trees running up the highway."

He said Clausen opposed dredging Humboldt Bay, which he, Drath, considered "essential to the economy there."

Drath said, "Clausen voted against Medicare and now is seeking to imply he was in favor of it."

Two other congressional candidates sent representatives to speak at the meeting. Saul Stern, of Ramparts Magazine, spoke for Robert Scheer, East Bay candidate, and Martin Gorfinkel spoke for Edward Keating, a candidate from the San Francisco peninsula who edits the same magazine.

Both spokesmen were severely critical of the war in Viet Nam and urged United States withdrawal.

Indian Food Riots Grow Steadily More Violent

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Mobs burned down railway stations and tossed homemade bombs in the Calcutta area during the night as food riots went into their third day.

The situation in Calcutta and surrounding West Bengal State was quieter than the previous two days of clashes between mobs and police units. But neither the demonstrators nor leftist leaders egging them appeared to have finished.

One mob trapped a state-owned bus near Tala Bridge in North Calcutta, according to official reports reaching New Delhi. Three passengers were wounded in the bomb blasts that followed.

Only 10 state-owned buses were in operation on routes where scores normally move. Most shopkeepers shuttered their stores for the third consecutive day, creating additional food problems for the city's impoverished residents who normally keep on hand only food for one or two meals.

Home Minister G. L. Nanda, responsible for law and order, arrived in Calcutta from New Delhi with Food Minister Chidam-Baram Subramaniam.

These officials claim West Bengal's wave of violence is a premeditated assault on the New Delhi government's authority by pro-Chinese Communists and other leftists — and not spontaneous demonstrations against food shortages, as the leftists assert.

Veteran Driver Turns In License

BAY SHORE, N.Y. (AP)—Eugenia Richards has been driving for half a century.

But 50 years behind the wheel is long enough for any person, says Mrs. Richards, who turned in her driver's license.

In a letter accompanying the license she said she thought it was time to make room for younger drivers.

Cash Awarded To Workman Trio Trapped On Job

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Total damages of $175,000 have been awarded three San Francisco Bay Area workmen momentarily buried under tons of debris in 1962 during construction of the San Francisco Federal Building.

The award followed 12 hours deliberation yesterday by a jury of eight men and four women in San Francisco Superior Court. Testimony took 66 days.

Marvin E. Lewis, attorney for the workers, sought 10 times the damages awarded—or $1.75 million—in the suit. He termed the award as "not nearly enough," and said he would seek a new trial solely on the amount of damages involved.

The jury awarded $25,000 to Donald E. Evans, 37, a San Francisco truck driver; $50,000 to Roger L. Jensen of Oakland and $100,000 to Glen H. Kennedy of Fremont.

Police Duck Bullets, Find Man's Corpse

OAKLAND (AP)—Responding to a call, police ducked four bullets today, fired tear gas and entered an East Oakland residence. Upstairs, they found a man's corpse, a bullet wound in the head.

Then they pieced together this story:

Ambulance attendants, summoned by telephone, said Mrs. Arlene Agbulos, 38, refused them entrance.

They called police, who related:

Mrs. Agbulos fired four shots at them. They responded with tear gas.

She tossed a .32 caliber revolver through a window.

Police found the body of her husband, Hilario, 58, after they removed Mrs. Agbulos and her three children—aged 15, 8 and 3 from the house.

They said the couple had quarreled after Mrs. Agbulos screamed at the children; then he was slain with one bullet.

Mrs. Agbulos was placed in jail and charged with suspicion of murder.

The children were placed with juvenile authorities.

A LAST FAREWELL—While many of the Independent-Journal employees watch, hearse bearing the body of Roy A. Brown, Independent-Journal publisher for 29 years, circles the I-J Building at Fifth Avenue and B Street prior to funeral service. It was Brown's custom always to call at the newspaper as his last act before leaving on any journey. (Independent-Journal photo)

Roy Brown's Civic Works Told At Rites

The life of Roy A. Brown as public benefactor and personal friend was extolled by Rev. John Jefferson Canoles at a funeral yesterday attended by a throng that filled San Rafael's First Presbyterian Church.

Rev. Canoles, who was pastor of the church for many years, recalled many benefactions Brown, who died Wednesday, had made anonymously to persons in need. He never would permit the recipients to know his name so they could thank him, being satisfied with the good he had accomplished, the longtime pastor related.

Drawing on the Bible, Rev. Canoles said the late Independent-Journal publisher was one who had "proved his salvation" by accomplishing much of what he set out to do.

His presence in the congregation at the church always helped the preacher, said Rev. Canoles. "We cannot explain it, but there was something he brought with him, something in his presence. Every preacher knows."

Recalling Brown's pleasure with the accomplishments of young people at graduation time, Rev. Canoles said, "Perhaps God has said to him, 'You have completed your studies here; you have done a good job; it is time for you to graduate.'"

Harold P. Boerst, worshipful master of Marin Lodge 191, Free and Accepted Masons, recited the Masonic funeral ritual.

Before the service, the hearse bearing Brown's body made a circuit of the Independent-Journal Building, symbolic of the fact that Brown always visited the newspaper he headed as his last call before leaving on any journey.

Among tributes published in other newspapers was one by Brown's longtime friend, Paul A. Leake, member of the State Board of Equalization, in the Woodland Democrat, of which Leake is publisher.

Noting that "he and his longtime distinguished partner, Justus Craemer, through their newspaper, the San Rafael Independent-Journal, had to their credit many 'firsts' for the development of their community," Leake went on:

"He remained the unassuming, quiet gentleman, despite the national and state awards the paper received and the personal honors conferred upon him as president of the National Editorial Assn. and as a director of the Inter-American Press Assn. and Audit Bureau of Circulations, and also as president of the California Newspaper Publishers Assn.

"Those who mourn him in print will be at a loss for words to adequately express their thoughts of him. His dignity, sincerity and modesty gave meaning to every move he made and every word he spoke."

pais School Board and Jack L. Mengel, vice chairman of the county committee.

The proposal called for unifying the Tamalpais and Redwood High School attendance areas, leaving out the Bolinas-Stinson Beach District. Tomales High School District would have been unified with the Sir Francis Drake High School attendance area and the Bolinas-Stinson Beach School District.

Evidently voicing the opinion of others on the board, Mrs. Talcot Bates of Carmel objected that this proposal "divided an already strong and going high school district."

Board president Thomas W. Braden said he found "no exceptional circumstances" to warrant approval.

The board instructed the county committee to return in six months with a more satisfactory proposal.

Robert Stannard, assistant county superintendent of schools, said there were three courses of action open to the committee:

1. Recommendation that Tomales be unified as a single district of its own, a proposal already several times rejected by the state board.

2. Recommendation that the entire Tomales district be unified with the Tamalpais district.

3. A three-way split of the Tomales section with the West Marin area going to the Tamalpais District, the Tomales High School going to the Petaluma School District and the northernmost areas going to the Analy High School District in the general area of Sebastopol.

Mrs. Conner said the committee finds itself in a "puzzling situation," because the law requires a unification election in the Tomales District next July 1, yet there is still no plan to vote on.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Civic Center. At that time, Mrs. Conner said, the committee will try to find out its legal obligations.

FBI Arrests Two In Industrial Secrets Case

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Two men were arrested by FBI agents Friday and charged with offering to sell stolen formulas for a new synthetic rubber process to the DuPont Co.

The Baltimore office of the FBI, which announced the arrests, said the men allegedly attempted to sell the formulas, valued at several million dollars, for $43,000. Both men were from Cleveland, Ohio.

Wilbur Pierce, 27, identified as an unemployed truck driver, was arrested at a motel near here and appeared before U.S. Commissioner Edward Pollard. He was held for trial in U.S. District Court in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Ronald Bush, 28, was arrested in Cleveland, where he has been employed as a process engineer since January. He will appear before U.S. Commissioner Clifford E. Bruce in Cleveland.

The FBI said Pierce wrote a letter to DuPont which was postmarked Lorraine, Ohio. The letter allegedly contained the offer to sell the formulas belonging to the B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, Ohio, and the Montecatini Corp. of Milan, Italy.

Disclosure of the Communist capability of increasing troop strength 50 per cent above the estimated 235,000 now in South Viet Nam came in a briefing for congressional staff members.

Officials said such an increase would require infiltration of up to 150 tons of supplies daily. They said this would be about the limit of Communist supply capability.

The officials said a 50 per cent Communist increase would require substantial U.S. reinforcements, because South Viet Nam is nearing the bottom of its manpower pool. No estimate was given of any future U.S. increases. American forces now committed number 235,000.

well Thi's replacement performs. Thi's successor, Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, arrived in Da Nang yesterday to take over Thi's job as commander of the 1st Corps.

The strategic port city of Da Nang has been the scene of protests for two days. This morning an estimated 2,000 soldiers, students and adult Vietnamese civilians staged an orderly demonstration calling for Thi's return.

The U.S. Navy flew 13 missions and the Air Force made three strikes over the Communist north today. The strikes were aimed at roads and bridges, an Air Force spokesman said.

The Marines and the Air Force searched the area of the Ashau Special Forces' camp on the Laotion border for survivors of the two-day battle against a regiment of North Vietnamese regulars. The battle ended in defeat Thursday, but corps informants in Da Nang said 204 persons have been brought out by helicopters which risk heavy ground fire every time they dip down.

Thirty-two of those rescued were Americans.

Some 350 tons of ammunition for 105 mm howitzers, recoilless rifles and small arms were destroyed early today in an explosion on a barge in the river two miles outside Saigon. The blast set a fire that enveloped two more barges. Eventually all three sank with a thundering roar.

The moored barges were evacuated when the fire broke out and there were no casualties. A government spokesman said there was a possibility of Viet Cong sabotage. Other accounts said, however, a cooking fire on the first barge may have touched off the explosion.

Vietnamese military spokesmen said their troops killed 37 Viet Cong yesterday in a one-day search and destroy operation about 100 miles southeast of Saigon.

There was no report of government casualties.

Blind Workers Safely Flee Fire

Fire authorities credited past fire drills for the orderly evacuation of the home which averted what might have been a major tragedy.

San Rafael police yesterday arrested Carl P. Umland III, 18, of 1560 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo, and charged him with stealing a 1962 Thunderbird from the Paragon Motors used car lot at 1532 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

Police said the youth went to the lot two days earlier and borrowed ignition keys to start the motor to listen to it, saying he might buy the car.

He was handed a key ring with two ignition keys, and kept one of them, police charged. That night the car was stolen, as were license plates from another car on the lot. The car was later spotted near Umland's parents' home in Woodacre, and an arrest followed.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

I am making a jacket and dress out of double knit fabric. I don't like to leave the seams without a finish and, since I don't have a zig-zag sewing machine, I can't overcast the seams. I've used hem tape and the seams draw up. Please, give me a suggestion that will really work.

Mrs. V.B.B.

Dear Mrs. V.B.B.

I find that most gals who sew don't realize that any kind of knitted fabric has a certain amount of give. That is the reason you find so few of them underlined. Because of the natural give of your knit, the seam tape will pull and draw up the seams. Instead of using regular seam tape, try binding the raw edges of the seams with matching bias hem tape. The bias will give the same as the fabric and the results should be perfect.

Dear Eunice:

My grandmother spent a great deal of her life sewing. In those days it was necessity if you wanted anything to wear. She told me that she heard you should always press your seams together, just the way they were stitched, before you turn the faced edges. I haven't seen anything like this in any modern sewing book. Perhaps you can help me.

Carol Sue

Dear Carol Sue:

Your grandmother had a good idea and it is true that one seldom hears about this sewing tip. After you have completed stitching your seams, press them flat with the steam iron (before you press them open). The pressing will help "sink" the stitches into the fabric and make them less noticeable. You will proceed by pressing the faced edges open with the point or edge presser of your tailor trix pressing board.

PINKED TAPE: I've had so much trouble applying iron-on tape patches. They always come off in the first laundry. One day, I couldn't find my regular scissors. I used my pinking shears to cut a patch out of the tape. It proved to be a very good idea. The patch has been through many washings, and has showed no signs of the edges curling up.

For sharing this discovery, Mrs. N. Biltcliffe, Fall River, Mass., wins this week's tailor trix pressing board.

Dear Eunice Farmer:

You have told us many times how to lower a bustline dart. The darts never seem to be high enough for my figure. Please tell us how to raise the underarm dart.

Mrs. W.C.E

Dear Mrs. W.C.E.:

Since the underarm dart is already quite close to the sleeve seam, it is not wise to raise the dart at the seamline. Instead, mark the exact point where the dart should end, and redraw your dart, using the same marks at the underarm seam and using a new angle so the dart will be in the correct place.

Classes To Open On Low-Fat Meal Plans

Are you among the increasing number of homemakers who must plan family menus around a low cholesterol and low saturated fat diet?

Does the challenge have you baffled somewhat as you review the lengthy lists of requirements in low fat and low cholesterol meal planning?

A series of two classes, Food for Healthy Hearts, has been announced by the Marin County Heart Assn. to acquaint the homemaker with special menus and short cuts in meal preparation when restrictions are made for low cholesterol and low fat.

Cooking demonstrations and marketing suggestions will be given by Frances Dahl and Shirley Sichel, nutritionists.

First class gets under way March 23 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Pacific Gas and Electric Building, San Rafael. The second class will be given March 30 at the same location and time.

By popular demand, the new series of instructions will include hints for the homemaker for summer food planning, picnic and barbecue menus restricted to low cholesterol and low fat diets. How to recognize foods with visible and invisible fat and cholesterol content will also be emphasized.

Registration for the two morning lecture series and demonstrations may be made with the Marin County Heart Assn. A small registration fee covers instruction, bulletins, menus and other course materials.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Guys And Dolls' Give Novatans A Winner

By KARL BARRON

The greatest thing about "Guys And Dolls" (although it has good music by Frank Loesser) is the way in which the book by Jo Swerling and Abe Burrows captures the flavor of Damon Runyon's Broadway.

Through it run the unbelievable, lovably rowdy characters which Runyon created — based upon real ones. A production without Harry The Horse, Nicely-Nicely Johnson, and Big Jule talking with the stilted ungrammatical lilt of Runyon is nothing.

Luckily for the Novato Community Club, director Scott Wright has rounded up enough Runyonesque characters to bring it off in the production which opened last night at the Novato Community House. It will be repeated tonight, and next Friday and Saturday at 8:15.

Harry The Horse as portrayed by Don Leaf, and Big Jule romped through by Ed Hamann steal the show from stiff competition in the lead roles. Leaf and Hamann are right out of the pages of Runyon and are both hysterically funny.

Running them a close third is Lois Wright as Miss Adelaide. Miss Wright's coy Brooklynese, cute face and figure, and accurate timing all combine into a delightful character. She is especially good in "Adelaide's Lament" and "Take Back Your Mink", backed by a chorus of Novato housewives in opera stockings.

As Nathan Detroit, the operator of the "world's oldest established permanent floating crap game," Vince McGovern is satisfactory, but a little monotonous. His duet with Adelaide, "Sue Me", is well done.

Claudia Smart plays Sarah Brown, the girl from the Save-a-Soul Mission who falls for gambler Sky Masterson. It's a difficult role, combining sanctity and worldliness, and Miss Smart does well by it, notably in "If I Were A Bell," and her duet with Masterson, "I've Never Been In Love Before."

As Masterson, Otto Haiungs sings excellently and acts well, but seldom captures the Runyon touch. He and the male chorus present a dramatically good bit in "Luck, Be A Lady Tonight."

Probably the best voice in the cast belongs to tenor Art Bliss, who stands out in his duet "Guys And Dolls" (with Mark O'Brien) and "Sit Down, You're Rockin' The Boat." This last is by far the most effective vocal number in the show, with the entire chorus firing up behind Bliss.

Wright's direction lacks imagination, with characters standing too often in a vaudeville line, but he manages to keep a fast pace going, and choreography by Maybelle Pinson is simple but good. The most complicated—and best—dance routine is that of the crap game in the sewer which opens the third act.

A number of scene changes are necessary and designer Shari Leaf has used simple suggestive set pieces to achieve nice effects.

Piano, drums and bass constitute the orchestra, with Norma Porter's piano guiding the cast well — not drowning them out.

We were told by producer Ted Lane that for the past five weeks, the company has rehearsed five nights a week. It is hard to get a large cast of amateurs to work a schedule such as this, and the amount of work shows. The guys and dolls of Novato have a winner: A seven on the first roll!

FESTIVAL PRODUCTION WILL CLOSE

Don Carr and Betty Fuller appear in the Festival Theater's production of Arthur Miller's "All My Sons," which will close a seven-week run March 20 in the theater in San Anselmo. On March 25, 26 and 27 the theater will present Voices Unlimited of Palo Alto in a production of "The World of Carl Sandburg."

Optimists Set Up Fund To Assist Juveniles

An annual $100 grant, aimed at giving a helping hand to a boy or girl due for release from Marin County Juvenile Hall, has been set up by the San Rafael Optimist Club in memory of San Rafael attorney Donald E. Patterson Jr., a member of the club.

Paterson, interested in the work of Juvenile Hall and active in the club's youth program, died of a heart attack at his Fairfax home Feb. 14. He was 42.

A three-member committee will select a boy or girl for the grant which will be used for goods and services needed on release from the detention center.

A statement issued by the club yesterday reads in part: "We . . . dedicate ourselves to the belief that the spirit of concern for the problems of youth and service to the community, as exemplified by this great man, shall be our continued concern."

Trustees Due Review On Integration

Dr. Rodman Starke, a Sausalito physician, will report on interpersonal relations since the district became integrated last September in a report to the Sausalito School District trustees at an 8 p.m. meeting Monday in the district office. Starke is chairman of the interpersonal relations committee which has made a study.

Mrs. Betty Brandon, district psychologist, will report on the district's testing program and Asst. Supt. Joseph Amato will report on tabulation of instructional, auxiliary and special programs in the district. He will also report on the fact the federal government may reduce its in-lieu money given for federally impacted areas from the present $40,000 per year to $20,000.

Earns His Diploma

Joseph Ray Raffo of 2 Nevada Street, San Rafael, was among 61 students at the University of Pacific, Stockton, who completed work toward a bachelor's degree at the end of the fall semester. Raffo, son of Mrs. Josephine Raffo, will receive his diploma at graduation ceremonies June 5.

China Punishes Intellectuals

HONG KONG (AP) — Red China has placed 160,000 writers, performers, artists and musicians in manual jobs on farms, factories, mines and military units in the past 18 months, Peking's official Peoples Daily says.

Western experts here called it the most drastic purge of Chinese intellectuals since 1958, when Peking cracked down on Chinese who responded to Mao Tze-tung's invitation to intellectuals to criticize the way the Reds were governing China.

The Peoples Daily said the 160,000 "literary and artistic workers actively responded to the call of the (Communist) party to take up manual labor." The paper left no doubt, however, that they were being punished for non-Communist thinking.

Students Rap Loyalty Oath For Teachers

The College of Marin student executive council Thursday passed a resolution calling on the State Legislature to repeal laws which require California teachers to sign loyalty oaths and be fingerprinted.

Hal Aigner, editor of the student newspaper, Tower Times, introduced the resolution, calling the two requirements "degrading" and "outdated remnants of the Red scare era."

The resolution was forwarded to the California Junior College Student Government Assn. which, the council decided, has more direct communication with the State Legislature.

The executive council also asked that campus police officer Dennis Lawrence be present at its next meeting. Members of the council questioned the efficiency with which patrolmen have policed student activities such as dances.

Last week, the Student Inter-Club Council banned campus dances for a month, following $150 damages caused by vandals allegedly attending a dance in the new College Center.

Groups To Hear Family Planners

Speakers from the Marin Planned Parenthood Assn. will appear before two Marin groups next week.

Association vice president David W. Jackson will speak to the Hi-Twelves men's group at noon Wednesday at Mission Inn, San Rafael. He will discuss the population boom in Marin.

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, association president, will show a sound film titled "Our Shrinking World" to members of Parents Without Partners at 8:15 p.m. next Friday.

Condition Unchanged

No change was reported today in the condition of Mrs. Norma Jean De Curtoni, 53, of Stinson Beach, listed as poor at Marin General Hospital since she reportedly took an overdose of pills.

Meat Said Plentiful

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Meat will be in good supply on American markets this year and at lower prices, says the president of the Producers Livestock Marketing Assn., John Rundquist. Despite a record domestic demand and growing military requirements there appears no need for rationing or price controls, he said.

Fairfax To Eye Personnel Laws

A rewritten personnel ordinance, updated since the last one was adopted in 1940, will be introduced at Monday's Fairfax City Council meeting at 8 p.m. in the Fairfax Women's Club.

The main change in the new measure, as proposed, will be to make the decisions of the board of review final on appeals by employees to dismissals or other disciplinary measures. At present a unanimous vote of the council can overrule the board.

The council is also scheduled to discuss the county park bond issue, improvement of Center Boulevard and authorization to call for bids for several street repaving projects.

Church Has Display Of Painter's Works

Paintings by Andrea Hendick of the Marin Society of Artists will be on display Thursdays and Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m. throughout March at the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin, 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

The exhibition, which opened today, is the first in a series the church plans to show the scope and vitality of modern Bay Area art.

Hub Police Nab Youths For Joy Ride

Three youths—two 14 and one 15—stole a car from Ross early today and went on a joy ride to Point Reyes Station and Olema before being picked up by police in San Anselmo three hours later, police reported today. The teen-agers were booked into Juvenile Hall.

The car, owned by Webster Otis of 62 Loma Linda Avenue, Ross, was stolen about 1 a.m. The youths admitted colliding with a parked car during the drive, according to Sgt. Robert White of San Anselmo police.

Under questioning, the youths also admitted taking a purse from an auto parked at St. John's Church, Ross, last night by Mrs. Joan Grant of 500 Fawn Drive, San Anselmo. The purse contained no cash.

White said the youths told him they had made several attempts at stealing cars in Ross and also broke into an auto in San Anselmo March 5.

Briton Deflates Chinese Peril

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Viscount Antony Head, former British defense minister, says Red China is not as great a threat as he says most Americans believe.

"Red China does not want to rule Southeast Asia and I don't think they will go to war over Viet Nam," he said.

Head, who was minister of defense under Prime Minister Winston Churchill, told a forum Red China has too much to lose in a war.

Bruce Urges Welfare Aide Salary Hikes

A 20 per cent increase in salary for 80 positions in the Marin County department of public social services was recommended as an emergency measure by County Administrator Alan Bruce yesterday.

The proposal, recommended to take effect April 1, will go to supervisors Tuesday.

Bruce said that none of the 80 positions are vacant, the case load is in danger of climbing to the point where federal aid in some categories will drop from 75 to 50 per cent, and that morale of the department—formerly called welfare—is low.

The increase will add $15,682 to the county payroll for the balance of the fiscal year. Bruce said this money is in the payroll account for the department, due to accruals from vacant positions.

Supervisors earlier said no salary adjustments would be made until July 1, but Bruce is recommending an exception here.

Bunche Worries Over Population

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—The future may see "more life on this planet than it can possibly sustain," says Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, undersecretary of the United Nations.

Dr. Bunche said "the population ogre," and the "gap between the haves and the have nots" among nations are the two most serious problems facing mankind.

He spoke as he received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Toledo.

McCarthy Helps On College Fund

State Sen. John F. (Jack) McCarthy, R-San Rafael, has co-authored a bill to transfer funds from the general fund to the newly formed capital outlay fund for higher education.

The funds, McCarthy explained, will come from the Long Beach tidelands oil revenues.

The bill (S. B. 2) further specifies that for the next five years, $2 million will be expended annually to combat pollution in California rivers and streams.

DeMolay Seeks Books For Hospital's Use

Members of the Ross Valley Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will collect books and magazines for patients at San Francisco's Letterman General Hospital as part of their observance of International DeMolay Week, March 13-20.

The group also plans to schedule public service activities and social events each day during the week, according to chairman Norman Hantzsche. The week will mark the 47th anniversary of the order's founding.

Along The Road Which Hugs The Bay

Hugging the calm, dark waters of Richardson Bay, Sausalito's main thoroughfare and the target of every tourist, Bridgeway, curves northward through the scattered outskirts of the city. In the tiny, cluttered harbors and inlets to the right, boats and yachts can be seen at moorings or in dry dock, awaiting another fine weekend. Dotted among the piers are the workshops where craft will be made ready for yet another season. Parallel with Bridgeway, California and Bonita streets cut their way through the residential neighborhood. After first swinging to the left and then to the right, Bridgeway joins busy Highway 101 at Waldo Point. (Photo from American Helicopter by Independent-Journal photographer, Bob Hax.)

Black Point Dredging Questioned

Black Point Improvement Club members want to know whether Bel Marin Keys developer Jack West has the necessary permits for a channel his crews are dredging through the tidelands off Black Point.

Fill from the project is likely to create a tule island, hamper fishing boat traffic and change the shoreline, club members agreed last night. They decided to query the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission on the project.

The club members, after meeting a huge but friendly Irish wolfhound named "Rosie O'Grady," unanimously endorsed the kennel permit sought by her owner, Don Rogers, for his property west of Crest Drive. Hearing on the permit will be held Monday by the county zoning administrator.

Pending application for a permit to allow the Atherton Club to open a public restaurant also was unanimously endorsed.

Club committeemen reported that a quitclaim deed has been filed for the club on a 9,380-square-foot parcel of property opposite the Black Point Inn, thus taking over the intended club house site of the now defunct Black Point Development Assn. The improvement club voted a letter of thanks to Henry Hobbs, last president of the old association, for his help on the site documents.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Removing foreign objects from the ear of a child can be a difficult medical procedure. Small stones, pieces of wood, peas, beans, beads, ball bearings, paper, erasers, and the like are found. Now and then an insect will fly or crawl into the ear canal.

The physician sees the youngster after everyone has tried to remove the object. It is stuck, but clearly visible and looks like it can be removed in a jiffy.

The physician sterilizes a delicate forceps or a cerumen spoon used to remove wax. The trick is to get the instruments between the wall of the ear canal and the foreign body.

THE CHILD JUMPS because it hurts or he thinks it is going to hurt. This continues and finally it becomes necessary to use an anesthetic. Many physicians anesthetize the child first and then remove the ob ject. It is easier, safer, less nerve-racking, and the medico makes a friend.

A Kansas City, Mo., physician uses suction when the object is round. Dr. George E. Volk connects a small rubber tube to the suction machine an inserts the flush tip gently and carefully into the ear canal.

This procedure eliminates the danger of pushing the object further into the canal and damaging the drum. He also has used a magnetic probe to remove a small steel ball bearing.

Foreign bodies do not always produce symptoms and the tyke may forget that he inserted the eraser, stone, or pea. The doctor may find it during a routine examination.

IN OTHERS, the object irritates or festers and the mother realizes something is wrong when pus drains from the ear.

An insect may cause great distress by beating his wings and crawling about. A few drops of mineral or olive oil immobilizes and smothers the critter. Then it is washed out.

(Dr. Ven Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

RABBIT FEVER

Mrs. L. C. writes: My husband goes hunting in the fall and often brings home rabbits. I have heard it is dangerous to eat these animals. Can you advise?

REPLY

Wild rabbits sometimes are victims of tularemia. For this reason the hunter and the cook should wear rubber gloves when handling and preparing the animal for eating whenever there is any question about the animal's health. In addition, it must be well cooked. These preventive measures should safeguard the family, in case the disease exists. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on tularemia.

LATE EPILEPSY

D. F. writes: Could epilepsy develop for the first time during the menopause?

REPLY

Yes. Ordinary epilepsy usually begins earlier in life and when convulsions first appear after the age of 40 a brain lesion is suspected.

ANEMIA EFFECT

R. B. writes: Does anemia cause nervousness?

REPLY

Some individuals become nervous whenever they feel below par. In these circumstances anemia must be severe enough to produce symptoms such as fatigue and shortness of breath.

FIRST BATH

Mrs. J. writes: When does the newborn baby receive its first bath in water?

REPLY

The infant usually is cleansed with oil for the first few days until the cord separates.

BULGING AREAS

R. M. B. writes: How and why does a diverticulum in the bowel grow?

REPLY

These tiny pockets usually develop in areas of the bowel where the wall is weakest, particularly where blood vessels pierce the wall. The bulge is slight at first but as the years pass it increases in size because of pressure from within.

REDUCING

Mrs. A. K. writes: I'm on a slimming diet but would like more information on the subject of reducing. Do you have such a leaflet?

REPLY

Yes. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet giving general advice on taking off poundage.

ASTHMA AND THE HEART

N. B. writes: Could bronchial asthma cause heart trouble?

REPLY

Yes. The right side of the heart is affected in asthma because it is called upon to pump blood against resistance produced by scar tissue within the lung.

IT'S SAFE

Mrs. D. C. writes: Could amebic dysentery be caught from doing the laundry of a victim of this disease?

REPLY

The chances are extremely slight and practically non-existent if strict sanitary precautions are observed.

SHREDS

Mrs. A. Z. writes: What is meant by shreds in the urine?

REPLY

Debris and pieces of infected material sloughed off from inflammatory areas along the urinary tract.

Biblical Archaeology Talks Set At Seminary

Recent archaeological discoveries in the Holy Land and their bearing on the Bible will be the subject of the annual Thomas Verner Moore Memorial public lectures at San Francisco Theological Seminary on Wednesday.

Frank M. Cross Jr., Hancock professor of Hebrew and other Oriental languages at Harvard University, and G. Ernest Wright, professor of divinity at Harvard will be the lecturers.

Dr. Cross, a native of Ross, has participated in many excavations in the Holy Land, and is the author of "The Ancient Library of Qumran and Modern Biblical Studies." He will speak at 3 p.m. in the sanctuary of First Presbyterian Church, San Anselmo, on the topic "The Daliyeh Papyri and the History of Samaria."

Dr. Wright will speak at 8:15 p.m. in Stewart Memorial Chapel at the seminary on "Archaeology, History and Theology." He is currently the director of the Drew-McCormick archaeological expedition to Shechem in Jordan, and has excavated at Bethel and Tel Gezer.

A panel discussion on "archaeology and the Bible" will follow Wright's lecture.

This year the Moore lectures are part of a three-day, Bay Area-wide symposium on Biblical archaeology sponsored jointly by San Francisco Seminary, the University of California at Berkeley, the Graduate Theological Union, and the Committee for Biblical Research.

The symposium will begin at 8:15 p.m. Monday with Professor W. F. Albright speaking on "The Impact of Archaeology on Biblical Research," in room 2000, Life Science Building at the university.

It will be on the Berkeley campus through Tuesday and will continue on Wednesday for the local lectures.

Pope To Meet With Archbishop

LONDON (AP) — Pope Paul VI will meet privately later this month with Rev. Michael Ramsay, the archbishop of Canterbury.

The meeting will take place March 23 at the Vatican.

The get-together will be the first time since the 16th century Reformation that an archbishop of Canterbury has met with the Pope officially.

Africa Mission Work To Be Described

Rev. Melvin A. Grams, who has spent seven years as a missionary in West Africa, will tell of his work at the 11 a.m. services tomorrow at the San Rafael Assembly of God Church.

Rev. Grams will play tape recordings of the choir of the African Bible Training Institute in Rustenburg, Transvaal, Republic of South Africa, where he soon will go to teach.

Synanon Visit

The Community Affairs Committee of Congregation Rodef Sholom, San Rafael, will sponsor a visit to Synanon at Marshall on next Saturday.

Survey Asks About Belief In Bible, Life After Death

Of almost 1,500 persons surveyed in Mill Valley last fall, 57 per cent said they believed in life after death.

Seventy-two per cent said they believed the Bible is true.

The house-to-house survey was conducted in October and November by students of Pacific Union College department of religion in Angwin, Napa County. The college is a Seventh-Day Adventist institution.

The survey was formulated and organized by L. R. Van Dolson, assistant professor of religion at the college. Students conducted it in an attempt to find persons interested in Bible study, one of the college's professors explained. A total of 1,478 persons were surveyed.

Some of the questions and some of the answers:

In your opinion is the Bible true? Seventy-two per cent affirmative, 17 per cent negative, 11 per cent no opinion or answer.

In your opinion is there life after death? Fifty-seven per cent affirmative, 25 per cent negative, 18 per cent no opinion or no answer.

In your opinion is Christ coming soon? Thirteen per cent affirmative, 58 per cent negative, 29 per cent no opinion or no answer.

Do you have a Bible? Ninety-three per cent affirmative; 6 per cent negative; one per cent no opinion or no answer.

Do you belong to a church? Eighty-two per cent affirmative; 18 per cent negative.

Do you believe that all churches should unite? Forty-one per cent affirmative, 45 per cent negative, 14 per cent no opinion or no answer.

Do you approve of giving children religious instruction? Nine-five per cent affirmative; five per cent negative.

Two other questions dealt with the interest in studying the Bible.

Surveyors found representatives of 18 denominations in addition to non-Christians and 272 persons listed as "no church."

Asked if they believed the Bible to be true, the highest percentage of affirmative answers came from Jehovah's Witnesses, 100 per cent of the four persons questioned answering affirmatively, and Pentecostal, 100 per cent of 12 persons questioned answering in the affirmative.

Eighty-eight per cent of the 75 Lutherans and 17 Mormons questioned said they believed the Bible to be true. Eighty-seven per cent of the 70 Baptists and 354 Roman Catholics questioned said they believed it true. Eighty-five per cent of the 27 Christian Scientists questioned believed it true.

On the opposite end of the scale, 25 per cent of the eight Quakers and 31 per cent of the 59 Unitarians questioned believe the Bible to be true.

Under the life after death question, 100 per cent of the 12 Pentecostals questioned said they believed, 77 per cent of the 354 Roman Catholics, 75 per cent of the four Jehovah's Witnesses, 74 per cent of the 27 Christian Scientists.

Twenty-five per cent of the eight Quakers and of the four non-Christians said they believed in life after death; fifteen per cent of the 59 Unitarians said they believed.

The question on uniting of churches brought the most close split responses, ranging from 57 per cent of Roman Catholics in favor to a low of 25 per cent of Pentecostals and Jehovah's Witnesses in favor of such a move.

Jewish Life In U.S. Changed, Author Says

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Noah Gordon, who has written a best-selling novel about the marriage of a rabbi and the daughter of a Protestant minister, believes a new era has begun for Jews in America.

"When I was a boy, I lived in a Jewish ghetto. There wasn't a family on the block that wasn't Jewish," he says.

Now the novelist lives with his wife and three children in a newly developed suburban neighborhood with a Protestant family on one side and a Roman Catholic family on the other.

"Now most Jews are like other Americans — all facing the ovens together. Pressures that made the Jews now exist for all of us," he said.

Gordon, 39, said there has been a surge of Jewish writers in the past decade, and this indicates to him that times have changed for American Jews.

He said he wanted his book, "The Rabbi," to differ from others in that it would avoid "that superneutoric, hysterical character hemmed in by the pressures of Jewishness and the rest of the world. But I didn't want to write about Mamma Goldberg either."

"The Rabbi" has been on best-seller lists for nearly seven months. Despite its popularity, Gordon said, he has received letters from readers who objected to the accounts of Rabbi Michael Kind's sex life and the fact that he drinks liquor.

"But I'm not a public relations man for rabbis. Man is a sexual being and drinks liquor, and I feel I must write about this," he said, adding that what he was trying to express was the Jewish faith as a kind of maturing process, a personal commitment as an adult.

Although Gordon says prejudice against Jews has lessened, it has not disappeared. The book deals in part with that prejudice and with prejudice on the part of Jews toward others.

The animosity on the part of the Jewish women in Rabbi Kind's parish against his wife, Leslie, causes her to have a nervous breakdown.

Gordon, a reporter for the Boston Herald before he left the job three years ago to write the book, interviewed several rabbis and asked them what they thought of intermarriage and why. The book is a combination of their views and his own experiences.

Missionaries To Plan Future

WHEATON, Ill. (UPI) — A thousand missionary and church leaders will meet here April 9-16 at the Congress on the Worldwide Mission of the Church to formulate strategy for worldwide Christian missionary work for the next generation.

The congress hopes to bring forth a "Wheaton Declaration" which will serve as a rallying point for denominations, church groups and missionary societies which represent the conservative, evangelical sector of Protestantism.

It is sponsored by the Evangelical Foreign Mission Assn., the missionary arm of the National Assn. of Evangelicals, and the Inter-denominational Foreign Missions Assn.

Boys' Choir To Join Cathedral Festival

The boys' choir of St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross, will take part in the annual boys' choir festival of the Episcopal Archdiocese of California beginning at 4 p.m. tomorrow at Grace Cathedral, San Francisco.

The festival will be in the form of an evensong. The service will be repeated next Sunday at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Palo Alto.

ATTACK HUNGER

Family Planning, Famine Relief Is Aim Of National Church Unit

ST. LOUIS — The international welfare arm of the National Council of Churches has started a two-pronged program aimed at relieving famine and stemming over-poulation in the world.

The National Council's Division of Overseas Ministries called for use of birth control methods in heavily populated nations.

In a report issued this week, the agency reported that 80 of 96 denominations that replied to to an extensive questionnaire spent a total of $14 million in aid projects last year. This, said the report, falls far below the amount required to meet only current emergency food needs in church relief operations around the world.

The report said that the council's five-year emergency plan whereby food, funds and other aid would be geared to prevent mass starvation expected by 1970, was outdated, and that five to 10 million persons face starvation in India alone this year "unless remedial measures are undertaken."

The council queried 96 denominations and organizations to learn of the total aid effort. Of these, 76 responded by last January giving detailed information on 1,115 projects in 84 countries of Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Middle East.

The data gathered cover work in the fields of food distribution, agriculture, maternal and child clinics and nutritional therapy. It deals with location of work, type of projects, investment of men and money, manner of administration and effectiveness — facts which the council believes may serve as a step toward more efficient use of church resources.

Findings released in a text entitled "Food with Dignity," showed that U.S. Protestants last year fed five million people using a total of $32 million in U.S. government food and $2 million in food donated or purchased by American church members.

The largest of the Protestant and Orthodox relief and rehabilitation agencies, Church World Service, is a unit of the council's Division of Overseas Ministries, and includes 35 denominations. Last year 85 per cent of its overseas personnel and 60 per cent of its program budget were engaged in operations to combat hunger. Total value of food provided by Church Work Service in 1965 amounted to more than $23 million.

Of the total Protestant-Orthodox anti-hunger effort costing the churches $14 million last year, about one half went for feeding programs and the balance for attacking causes of hunger.

The report showed the denominations have 1,634 persons employed full and part time in combatting world hunger. One third of these were reported to have special training, 401 in agriculture and related fields, 115 in home economics and nutrition. Only one-tenth of the total resources spent by the cooperating churches for fighting hunger went into training national leaders, it said.

The report also announced birth control is the newest phase of the organized Protestant effort to combat world hunger.

Established in 1965, the program saw Church World Services provide professional supplies to 200 doctors in 35 nations. In addition, educational literature on birth control was sent to 66 nations.

The report offered by the division of Overseas Ministries called for these revisions:

1. That all personnel in overseas ministries and service spend at least part of their time in promotion and explanation of family planning.

2. That literature and instructions on nutrition be used in "saturation coverage" of needy nations. "The distribution of bulk foods is no longer our most significant contribution to nutrition except in limited famine areas," the report suggested.

3. That at least one major pilot program be aimed at "root causes" of hunger. This includes such projects as planting 24 million seedling trees in Algeria, draining and reclamation of swamplands in Africa and updating of agriculturel techniques in India.

WORK PARTY

Church Sponsors Project To Aid Fatherless Child

A "human resource" project to give fatherless children male companionship is being started by the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin in San Rafael.

Bruce David Sloan of Alto is leading the program to get men and youths together in work or recreation.

The idea for the program came when a mother without a husband asked the church Human Resource Fund, through which members may find emergency baby sitters or transportation to a hospital or other types of human aid, if it were possible to get some male companionship for her son.

Noting the high divorce rate in Marin and statistics which show wives outlive their husbands, it was decided to ask men to volunteer some time to be with fatherless youths, Sloan explained.

Two male members of the church have volunteered for the project which will begin Saturday when the men are asking youths "who will work" to help build a fence and refurbish a garage at a Corte Madera home so the garage may be used as headquarters for the single adult group of the church.

In the future, Sloan, a widower with grown children and step children, hopes to bring youths and men together for hikes, fishing, and other work projects.

The problem of the child without a father is a "human situation — something ought to be done about it," Sloan said.

Churches Oppose Racing On Sunday

SAN FRANCISCO—The board of the Northern California-Nevada Council of Churches has affirmed its opposition to night and Sunday harness racing in California, and supported the work-furlough plan for county jail inmates.

The council authorized a study of a proposed plan for conjugal visits for carefully screened prisoners in state correctional institutions. This program has been proposed by Clinton Duffy, former warden of San Quentin Prison.

Mystery Plays Will Be Performed

They will be given in front of the parish church of St. Wulfram at Grantham in June by a cast of 180, largely drawn from local dramatic societies.

Methodist Official

Rev. Joyce Wesley Farr, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Bakersfield, will take over in June as superintendent of the Redwood Empire District of the California-Nevada Conference of the Methodist Church. The district includes Marin.

PRE-PEACE CORPS

Agricultural Experts Aid Hungry

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

More than 50 years before the U.S. government began sending technical aid missions abroad, American agricultural missionaries were at work in the backwoods villages of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

With practically no resources except their knowledge and their bare hands, they helped to dig wells, build compost heaps, plant seedbeds, check erosion. They showed farmers how to increase the yield of each previous plot of land by using better seeds and fertilizers.

They introduced protein-rich crops such as peanuts and soybeans. They learned how to cope with the plagues which periodically wiped out the chicken flocks.

They organized credit unions to deliver farmers from the clutches of usurious moneylenders who charged them up to 200 per cent interest on loans. They founded marketing cooperatives. They taught the village women how to use local products—such as sisal straw—to make handicrafts that could be sold in the cities.

The heroic efforts of the agricultural missionaries—and some of the miracles they've achieved in raising living standards among the poorest people on earth—are recounted in a new book called "Crusade Against Hunger" by I. W. Moomaw, an Ohio farmer who went to India in 1925 as an agricultural missionary for the Church of the Brethren. In recent years, he has kept in close touch with agricultural missionaries in all parts of the world as a field representative of the interdenominational agency, Agricultural Missions Inc.

Moomaw doesn't dwell on the hardships of the work. He is absorbed with the results—the well-nigh incredible transformations that take place when modern farming technology begins to lift people from the brink of starvation and introduce them to a new life of hope and human dignity.

But at the end of the book, he speaks out with the long-suppressed bitterness of a man who has seen too many babies starve.

"At present, the churches have 320 agricultural and home economics workers in service abroad," he says. "They make up only 3 per cent of the total number of American Protestant missionaries sent abroad.

"Today, the Protestant churches of America are giving in support of this work an average of 10 cents per member per year. This represents little more than the crumbs that fall from our tables.

"There is no situation in which a small investment can do so much to relieve human suffering. Why are we doing so little? Why this feeble response when the church is confronted by the greatest opportunity of the century?

"Does this represent the heart of the American people?"

Dodgers' Final Offer To Holdouts—'We'll Rebuild'

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "This," says Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, "is our final offer."

By that, it was taken to mean today the world champions will be minus their three top stars this season unless Sandy Koufax will play for $105,000, Don Drysdale for $95,000, and shortstop Maury Wills for $75,000.

The Dodgers and their three stars reached an impasse last night after Wills, the major league base-stealing champion, first canceled a scheduled flight from Los Angeles to the spring training camp here, then later rejected what the Dodgers called a 25 per cent pay raise.

"As far as I am concerned, the negotiations are off and we'll play this season without all three of them," said Dodger general manager E.J. (Buzzie) Bavasi. "I think our offers have been very generous. But if we have to play without all three, it might be a blessing. It will be the first year in a long time that we haven't had to win the pennant.

"I hate to play without Sandy, Don and Maury, but no one in baseball is indispensible. Anyone can be replaced. That goes for me, for O'Malley, for Walter Alston (Dodger manager), for anyone.

"We had some great players in Brooklyn, people like Duke Snider, Gil Hodges, Pee Wee Reese, Roy Campanella, Jackie Robinson, a lot of them. But sooner or later we had to do without all of them.

"It's the same with Koufax, Drysdale and Wills. If they don't play this year, it will only advance the time when we go without them.

"I can't make any of the three play baseball. If they want to quit it's their business. But, frankly, I'm tired of the whole affair.

"If they quit, we'll rebuild."

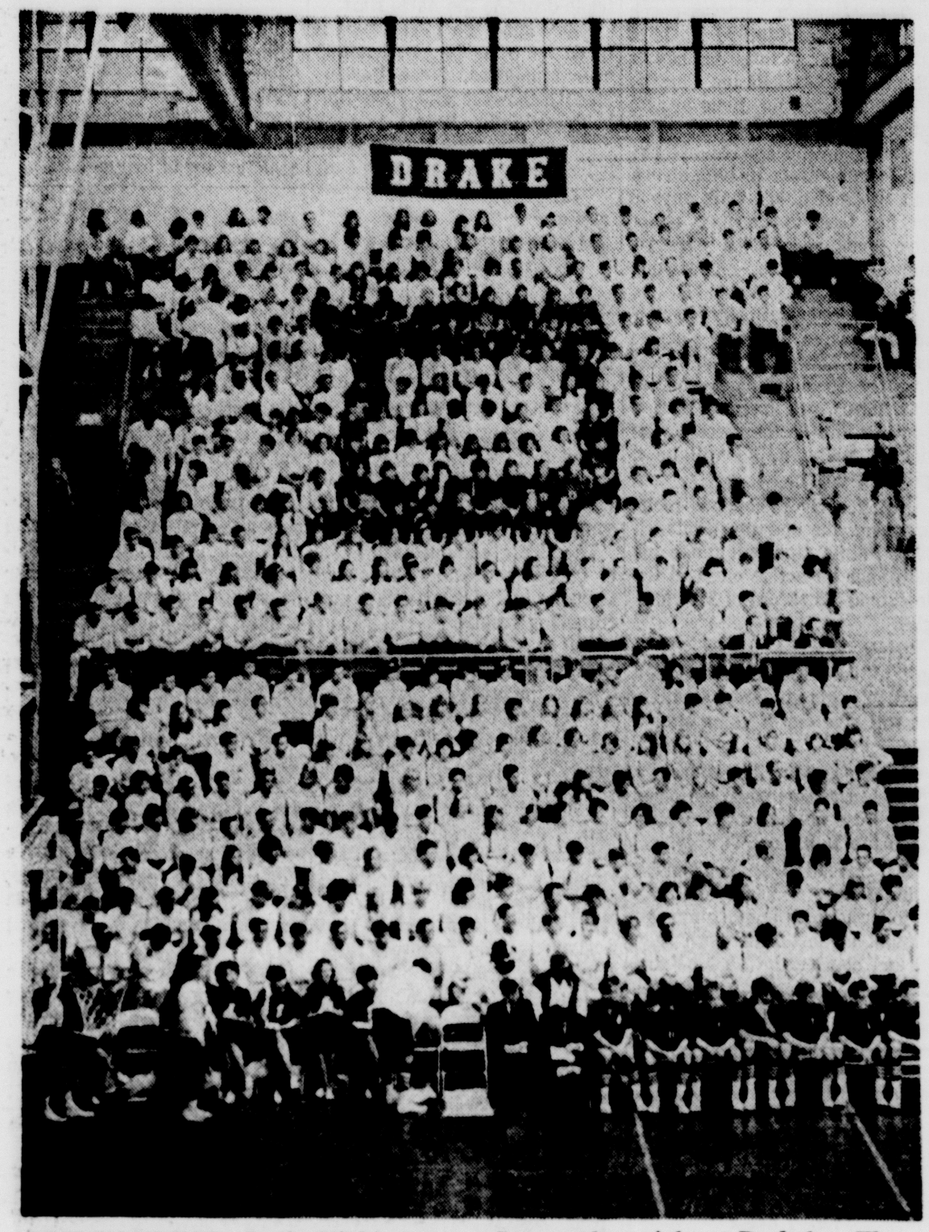

It would mean Johny Kennedy or possibly rookie Tommy Dean would inherit Wills' job at shortstop. And that such young pitchers as Bill Singer, Joe Moeller, along with veterans Howie Reed and Jim Brewer, would have a shot at joining Claude Osteen and Johnny Podres in the starting pitching rotation.

So, the Dodgers are shorn of two pitchers who won 49 games last year and a shortstop who stole 94 bases as they prepare to enter the exhibition season this afternoon against the Atlanta Braves at West Palm Beach, Fla.

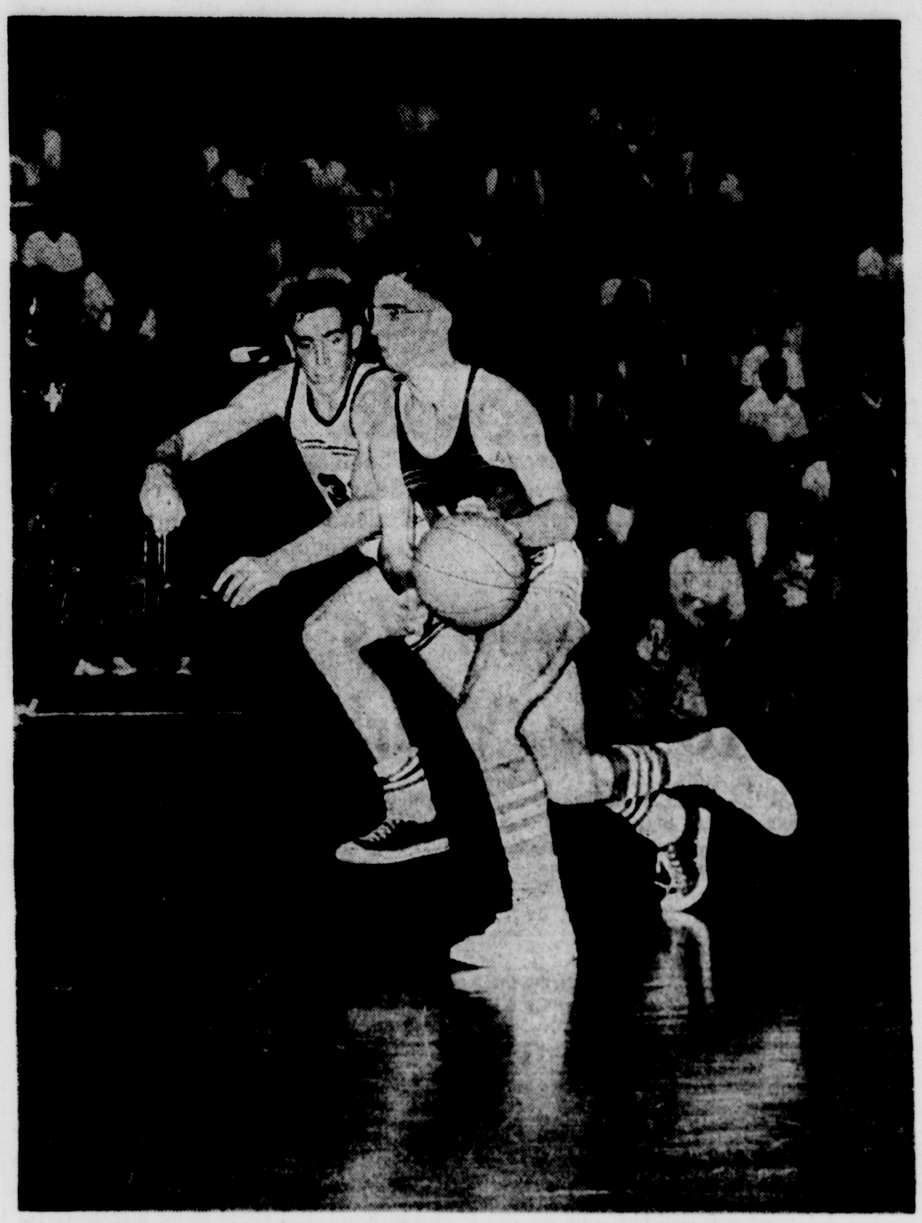

The impasse is serious.

Drake Tops Sonoma, Seeks Consolation Title

OUTSTANDING—Drake High's students presented an outstanding cheering section for game against Sonoma last night at Berkeley. The San Anselmo school hopes to win a spirit trophy at the Tournament of Champions.

PIRATE Will Curley (13), Drake's all-league guard, is seen dribbling around Sonoma's Earl McNeilly (31) in fourth period action at Berkeley Tournament of Champions last night. Drake won 59-45.

Bob Tobin Leads Bucs' 59-45 Win

By RALPH CHATOIAN

With big Bob Tobin again showing his class, the Drake Pirates dumped the Sonoma High School Dragons 59-45 yesterday at the Tournament of Champions in Berkeley, setting the stage for consolation championship play today.

Drake, the San Anselmo champ of the Marin Athletic League, takes on Salesian High of Richmond today at 5 p.m., with a consolation trophy going to the winner. Salesian made it to the finals with a 62-57 victory over Washington of Fremont. The losses knocked Sonoma and Washington out of the tourney.

In semi-final action last night in University of California's Harmon Gym, Arroyo upset Berkeley High School 70-69 and McClymonds of Oakland surprised Lincoln of San Francisco 59-55 in the second upset of the night.

For the championship prize tonight, McClymonds goes against Arroyo at 8:30, with Berkeley and Lincoln meeting at 7 o'clock for third place.

BIG GUN

Tobin was Drake's big gun for the second straight night, leading the Pirates in scoring with 17 points and in rebounds with 16, after scoring 16 points and plucking off 10 rebounds the night before, when the Pirates were downed by McClymonds 51-47.

He made 8 of 8 from the free throw line against McClymonds, and last night canned 7 of 8 for a two-day total of 15 out of 16. If he has another big night against Salesian the 6-5 center shouldn't be left off the tourney's all-star team.

SLOW START

It took Drake a little while to get rolling last night, but when "Big Green" started moving it steam-rolled. The Pirates got their first four points from the free throw line and didn't score a bucket until forward Jerry Sprout hit a short jumper almost six minutes into the game. But right after that, Tobin hit two straight hook shots, the first with his right hand and the second with his left, and the Pirates had a 10-6 first quarter lead.

The Pirates really got hot in the second quarter, while their defense was fierce, limiting the Dragons to only 13 points the first half. Leading off the second quarter, Sprout tipped one in, Tobin hit a three-point play and guard Will Curley drove in for a bucket to put Sonoma in a rut, 17-6.

DAZZLING PLAY

The first half came to an end with the Pirates on top 29-13, the last two Drake points coming on a dazzling play. An alert Bill Ingram batted the ball away from a Sonoman at midcourt, right into the hands of Curley who dribbled once, fed the ball back to the streaking Ingram who went in for an easy lay-up, just before the buzzer.

Thanks to the outside shooting of John Sweet and the inside side shooting of Earl Mc-Neilly, the Dragons of the North Bay League picked up the pace in the third and fourth quarter and outscored the Pirates in the second half, 32-30. But 14 of those 32 points were from the charity stripe the Pirates making too many fouls, 14 to be exact. Sonoma could have made better use of all those fouls, as the Dragons got 32 chances from the line and made only 19 of them. It should be noted that Jim Marioni made all five of his free tosses and McNeilly four of the four.

The Pirates weren't at the line as much, but when they were, wow! Drake made good on 17 of 22 chances. Besides Tobin's 7 of 8, Curley made 6 out of 7 and Chet Carlisle 3 of 4.

Drake had complete mastery of the boards throughout the one-sided contest, outrebounding Sonoma 40-25. Drake had a slightly better eye from the field, making 21 of 54 shots (39 per cent) to Sonoma's 13 of 39 (33 per cent).

With all those fouls (24) against Drake, it lost only one man because of them, Sprout, who fouled out with 4:18 left in the game. But when Drake coach Carl "Red" Brown pulled Tobin and Carlisle to send in the reserves, each had four fouls against him. And all the Pirates got some TOC "experience" in that final quarter when Brown emptied the bench.

Following Tobin in the scoring derby was Sonoma's 6-4 forward with that sugary name, John Sweet, who tallied 13 points. Curley chipped in with 12 points for Drake, including some pretty drives, and McNeilly added 10 for Sonoma.

Drake won't have it as easy today against Salesian. But if the Pirates can stop the Chieftains' high - scoring guard Ray Allen, they should come out winners of a trophy. Allen scored 16 points against Arroyo in Salesian's opener Thursday and hit 21 yesterday against Washington.

Bolin Finished '65 In A Blaze, Looks Forward To Big Season

HANLEY

PHOENIX — When Bob Bolin came up to the Giants in 1961 he was a fireballing rookie who, as the baseball cliche would have it, could throw a fast ball through a brick wall. For three seasons BB flamed the ball. He was a thrower, not a pitcher.

Bolin, of course, realized he couldn't continue throwing nothing but fast balls and stay long in the majors. Even the strongest of arms can't fire fast balls for nine innings and not burn out prematurely.

SO BOLIN, a strong 6-4, 216, began working with a slider. He threw it the only way he knew how to throw a baseball—hard. Then he started to work on a curve and by 1964 Bolin began to show signs of becoming a pitcher.

In July of 1964 he passed the first important milestone in his major league career. He pitched his first big time shutout. It was a 7-0, 12-strikeout performance against the Cubs in Chicago on July 11. A month later in Candlestick Park, he got his second shutout, a one-hit, 3-0, six-strikeout job against the Braves. Bolin finally was on his way.

HOWEVER, ON his way to spring camp last year he badly bruised his left knee in an auto accident and that took its toll. He lost his first three games in 1965 and was sent back to the bullpen. In a score of relief assignments, Bolin won eight, saved one and lost none. That entitled any pitcher to another regular starting assignment and the big righthander got it.

THIS TIME Bolin didn't falter. He blazed through the stretch of the 1965 campaign, winning six of his last eight games from Sept. 3 to closing day on Oct. 3 and wound up with a 14-6 record and 2.76 ERA, his best since first reporting in 1961.

"The season ran out on me last year just when I had everything put together," said Bolin, now anxious for the new season to start. "This year I'll be in tiptop shape from scratch.

"IT'S A great feeling to have confidence in your curve on a 3-1 pitch but it's an even warmer feeling when your catcher has confidence in your curve. Tom Haller didn't hesitate in calling for the curve from me in the 3-1 situation last year.

"I think I threw everything except a knuckleball last year, changing up on my fast ball, curve and slider. Occasionally my fast one will sink. Other times it sails. I still get the groceries with it."

BOLIN BELIEVES the Dodgers again are the team to beat in 1966 for the National League pennant "unless Maury Wills stays in Japan and Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale get frustrated in their try for a million dollars."

AS FOR the rest of the N.L. teams, Bolin declared "there isn't a patsy among them." Not even the Mets?

"With Ken Boyer, Rick Stuart and Ron Swoboda," said Bolin, "the Mets might be one of the toughest teams to pitch against this year. Facing Swoboda was bad enough but facing three home run hitters isn't going to be any rocking chair assignment."

Giants On Video Tomorrow

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The San Francisco Giants opened their 28-game exhibition baseball season today against Cleveland without the services of their two top pitchers and Orlando Cepeda.

Juan Marichal, who won 22 last year, and Bob Shaw, who won 16, remained at their homes as holdouts. Cepeda's wife was about to give birth and the Puerto Rican slugger has been excused from action.

The Cleveland Indians provide the weekend opposition for the Giants as the American League team has been doing regularly in spring training since 1934.

They've met 408 times before with the Giants winning 210 times, the Indians 190 and eight ties. They meet eight times before the 1966 season begins.

San Francisco manager Herman Franks planned to start Gaylord Perry today and follow with Lindy McDaniel and Joe Gibbon in the later innings.

TV GAME

On Sunday in Phoenix, Franks wants to start Bob Bolin and finish with Bill Henry and Frank Linzy. This game will be televised in the Bay Area starting at noon on KTVU, Channel 2.

The Giants might have to play this weekend without the full services of second baseman Hal Lanier and third baseman Jim Hart.

Lanier stepped from a shower onto his spikes, cutting himself deeply on the foot. Hart was chasing flies in the outfield when he stepped on himself with the same result.

If the Giants keep on stumbling over themselves in this fashion, Franks may have to decide to have the team work out in tennis shoes.

Oregon State Meets Utah In Regional Cage Finals

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Oregon State, a stingy, careful team always on the defense, meets hard-running, rangy Utah tonight in the final round of the NCAA Far West Regional basketball playoffs.

In Friday's action, OSU upset the nation's top-scoring offensive attack by edging Houston, 63-60, and Utah downed the University of Pacific, 83-74.

Coach Paul Valenti, a Tamalpais High School graduate, showed the Texas Cougars just what cold means, as the Beavers attempted to freeze the ball almost from the opening buzzer.

They shot only 42 times from the floor but hit 26 for a brilliant 61 per cent.

Houston, used to averaging more than 100 points per game, led at halftime, 30-28.

The Cougars offense then grew frustrated with the slow - paced game, while Rick Whelan kept a hot-shooting pace from the outside. Whelan led the Beavers with 24 points, the game-high.

Utah's threat centers on the unerring shooting eye of Jerry Chambers. Chambers, a 6-foot-4 jumping jack from Washington, D.C., hit eight of his first nine shots in the first half.

Utah also showed itself a master of the stall. With 6:45 to go, the Utes earlier 16-point lead narrowed to only four points, 73-69. The leaders, who usually try to run down their opponents, then slowed the pace and pulled away.

In the consolation game tonight, Houston will face University of Pacific.

NCAA QUARTERFINALS TONIGHT

Michigan-Kentucky Battle

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cool, calm Cazzie Russell and his University of Michigan teammates get their chance to upset the University of Kentucky, the No. 1 college basketball team in the country, in the quarter-finals of the NCAA championship tourney tonight.

Russell, a two-time All-America and the college basketball Player of the Year, sank two free throws in the last 11 seconds to give Michigan an 80-79 victory over Western Kentucky in the Mideast regionals at Iowa City, Iowa, last night.

Kentucky, seeking a record fifth national championship, also rallied to defeat Dayton 86-79 behind a 34-point spree by All-America Louie Dampier, 22 of them in the second half.

Duke, Texas Western and Kansas, the second, third and fourth teams in the final Associated Press poll of the season, also gained the quarter-finals along with Syracuse, Utah and Oregon State in the other regional play at Raleigh, N.C., Lubbock, Tex. and Los Angeles.

Jack Marin sank four free throws in the last 25 seconds to give Duke a 76-74 triumph over the fifth-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks of Philadelphia in the East regionals at Raleigh. Syracuse routed Davidson 94-78 behind the all-around brilliance of All-America Dave Bing.

TEXAS WESTERN

Texas Western came from 10 points back to beat seventh-ranked Cincinnati 78-76 in overtime in the Midwest regionals at Lubbock on Willie Cager's five vital points in the extra period. Kansas wiped out a 58-57 Southern Methodist lead to whip the Mustangs 76-70.

Jerry Chambers scored an arena record of 40 points at UCLA's Pauley Pavillion in Los Angeles to pace Utah over the University of Pacific 83-74. Oregon State, behind by 30-28 at the half, took a 10-point lead in the second half and defeated Houston 63-60.

The 10th-ranked Western Kentucky Hilltoppers seemingly had Michigan beaten when Steve Cunningham's jump shot with 27 seconds left gave them a 79-78 lead. Cunningham had latched onto a loose ball that got away from Russell when he slipped.

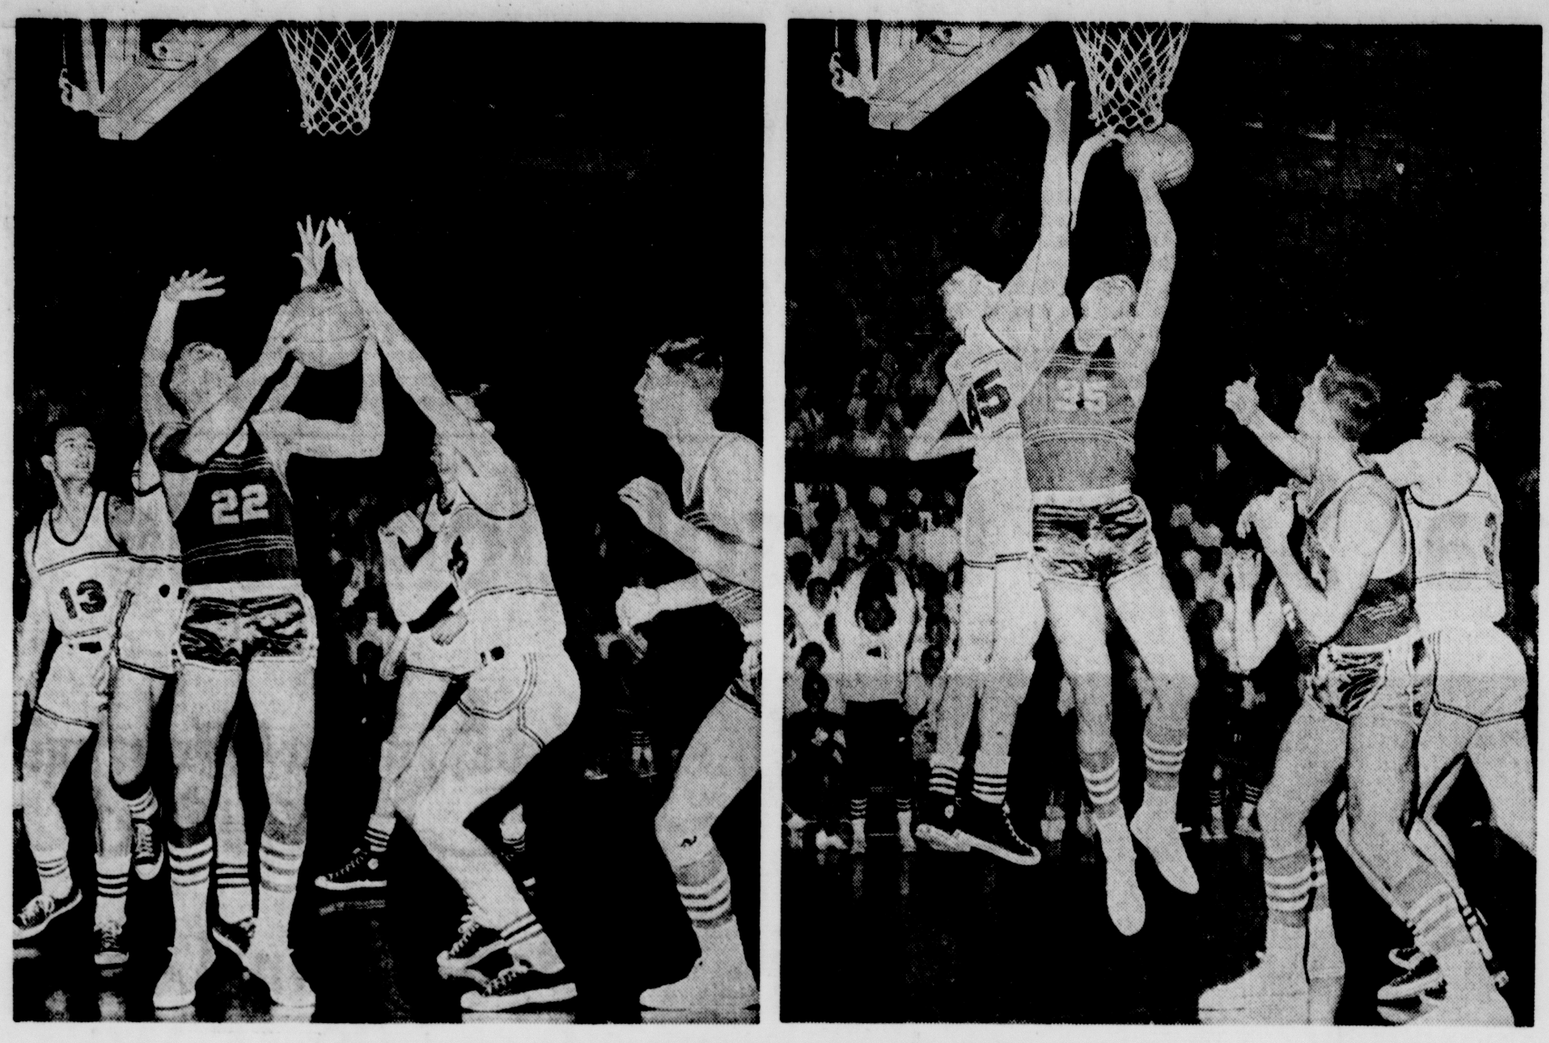

But Cazzie pulled the game out for the Wolverines when he was whacked on the shoulder by Greg Smith on a jump ball situation in midcourt with 11 seconds on the clock. It was a one-and-one call which meant Cazzie had to make the first free throw to get the second.

KENTUCKY RALLY

Dayton led Kentucky 64-59 midway in the second half before seven straight points by Dampier put the Wildcats ahead for good. Henry Finkle, who scored 36 points for Dayton, pulled the Flyers to within 76-75 before Kentucky spurted away on six points by Pat Riley.

Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp said Riley, who finished with 29 points, "played like a real All-

DRAKE HOOPSTERS DEFEAT SONOMA

Drake High's varsity basketball players managed to penetrate Sonoma's defense for these layup shots last night in Tournament of Champions consolation bracket at Berkeley. Dark-jerseyed Drake shooters are Bill Ingram (22) and Jerry Sprout (35). Loser by 47-51 to McClymonds on Thursday night, Drake bounced back with a 59-45 victory over Sonoma to reach the consolation finals today, 5 p.m., against Salesian of Richmond.

America all the way." As for Dampier, who got only 12 points in the first half, Rupp said "if you heard what I said to him between halves you'd know why he started playing better."

At Los Angeles — Utah vs. Oregon State. U of Pacific vs. Houston, consolation.

St. Joseph's, led by Cliff Anderson's 20 points, came from 10 points back to almost pull the game out against Duke before Marin's four free throws in the closing seconds kept the Blue Devils on top.

20 FOR BING

Bing got 20 points for Syracuse against Davidson compared to teammate George Hicker's 22, but Bing got two successive baskets at the start of the second half to turn the game into a rout. At one time Syracuse led by 35 points, 88-53.

Texas Western twice came from behind 10-point deficits and survived the loss of Nevil Shed to beat Cincinnati. Shed was ejected in the first half for fighting. David Lattin's 29 points pulled the Miners into a 69-67 lead before Don Rolfes of Cincinnati tied the regulation game at 69-69 with 30 seconds left.

A free throw by Rolfes gave Cincinnati a 70-69 lead in the overtime, but Cager's five straight points on two baskets and a charity toss put the Miners ahead for good.

Bulldog Merman Breaks Record

San Rafael High School's swimming team walloped Washington High of San Francisco yesterday in a practice meet in the San Rafael pool 76-19.

Bulldog Jim Morris set a new school record for the San Rafael splashers with a 1:07.1 clocking in the 100 breast, and Bill Cannedy and Dave Strauss were double winners for the Bulldogs. Cannedy placed first in the 200 and 400 free style events and Strauss raced to victory in the 50 and 100 free.

Washerwoman Vs. Mouth In Toronto For 'World Title'

TORONTO (AP) — Cassius Clay's television rating may match George Chuvalo's ring rating when the final chapter of boxing's dizziest heavyweight title saga comes off March 29.

Chuvalo, a ready, willing and vulnerable campaigner from Toronto, stepped in as Clay's playmate for the on-again-off-again championship bout yesterafter original challenger Ernie Terrell bowed out in a contract dispute.

The pairing of unbeaten Clay and often-beaten Chuvalo threatens to turn what had loomed as a $5 million bonanza into a financial bomb. Estimates of the gross receipts have sagged to a questionable $500,000, with closed-circiut television the big loser.

Main Bout Inc., which originally had some 280 theaters set to show the fight, lost over 100 exhibitors during a frantic, cross-country flight in search of a site. Wary of Terrell's reported connections with unsavory characters and shocked by Clay's intemperate outburst over his reclassification in the draft, half a dozen American and Canadian cities rejected the fight.

Toronto finally won approval to stage the bout, but Terrell, the World Boxing Assn. titleholder, found the terms of the contract unacceptable and pulled out Thursday.

Now the guess is that as few as 20 theaters remain on the television hook-up and the estimated $4 million television take has all but disappeared.

Chuvalo's chances of dethroning Clay appear even more bleak than the television picture.

Tagged "The Washerwoman" by Clay, he is ranked No. 10 by the WBA, has a mediocre 30-11-2 record and has dropped two of his last three fights.

The 205-pound Canadian lost a 10-round decision to little known Eduardo Corletti of Italy his last time out. He has been beaten by Terrell, by Floyd Patterson, by Tony Alongi and by Pete Rademacher.

New York oddsmakers rate Clay a prohibitive favorite at 5-1 and out. The WBA will not recognize the fight as a championship match.

Venturi Makes Run At Doral Victory

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — It's up in the clouds again for Ken Venturi, the hard-luck guy whose golfing life has been a series of valleys and plateaus.

"I feel great," the slender iron wizard from San Francisco said today as he fixed his sights on the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Doral Open.

"The weather is good, my hands are strong, I'm knocking the eye out of the flags with my iron shots again. I'm working up just right to the Masters," he said.

Venturi's enthusiasm was triggered by a brilliant 32 on the back nine of the 7,028-yard, par 72 Doral Country Club course yesterday that gave him a second round 68 for a score of 143.

With Jack Nicklaus, who rallied with a 66 after an opening 77, and a half dozen others, he was six shots off the lead held by Kermit Zarley of Yakima, Wash.

It was still anybody's tournament with 30 players within six shots or less of Zarley.

Arnold Palmer was tied with George Archer at 139. The 53-year-old Sam Snead and former PGA champion Bobby Nichols were in a group at 140, followed by Australian Bruce Devlin at 141. PGA champ Dave Marr headed the 142 group and then came Venturi, Nicklaus and Co. at 143.

Roberts Sparkles In Spring Opener

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Robin Roberts arrived in the major leagues, Harry Truman had not been elected president, the Russians hadn't exploded an atomic bomb, and the Korean War had not begun.

Roberts, now 39 years old, is seeking another year on the job, and he triggered his campaign yesterday with a near-perfect performance in Cocoa, Fla.

The Houston pitcher-coach allowed only an infield single to Danny Cater in three innings as the Astros blanked the Chicago White Sox 2-0 for their second straight exhibition victory.

Roberts, who started his major league career in 1948, struck out two and didn't walk anyone in his first appearance under fire since bone chips were removed from his elbow this winter.

The winningest right-hander among active pitchers, Roberts is testing his arm during spring training to determine whether the Astros will have to find a spot for him on the roster. If he doesn't make it, he will be a pitching coach.

But if early indications mean anything, the one-time Philadelphia Phillie star will make his 19th year an active one and try to extend his record of 281 victories.

"He's looked great, just great," Manager Grady Hatton said. "If this guy stays healthy, he will give our pitching staff a great boost."

Roberts gave the Astros a boost last season when he joined them after obtaining his release from the Baltimore Orioles.

He started with a four-hit shutout over Philadelphia Aug. 9, followed with another four-hit shutout against Pittsburgh Aug. 16 and continued with his third straight complete-game victory over Chicago Aug. 21.

He finished the season with a 5-2 record for Houston and 10-9 over-all. He also compiled a 2.78 earned run average with both teams, a mark he bettered only twice in his previous 17 seasons.

Roberts pitched the first three innings yesterday, and Larry Dierker and Danny Coombs completed the shutout. Joe Morgan's single and Doug Rader's triple drove in the Astro runs.

Four Baltimore pitchers combined for a one-hit, 5-0 triumph over Minnesota. Steve Barber, Moe Drabowsky and Dick Hall held the Twins hitless through eight innings, but Bernie Allen led off the ninth with a single off Don Larsen. Brooks Robinson hit a two-run homer in the first.

Veteran Vernon Law and rookie Woodie Fryman each pitched three scoreless innings as Pittsburgh downed Boston 5-2. Law also singled across a run in the second inning.

A two-run homer by Leo Cardenas snapped a tie and carried Cincinnati past Philadelphia 4-2. Deron Johnson also homered for the Reds.

In Mexico City, Cleveland bombed the Mexico City Reds 8-1 behind the home runs of Leon Wagner and Chico Salmon.

Another White Sox team defeated Kansas City 5-1 as the Athletics made four errors.

Fists Fly, Seals Bow To Canucks

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The scrapping San Francisco Seals licked their wounds today, nine points out of fourth place in the Western Hockey League despite some sound strategy.

The Seals set out last night to check the faster Vancouver Canucks and did so with bone-crunching results.

But the third-place Canucks beat the Seals 4-3, ending a three-game winning streak and putting San Francisco nine big points back of Seattle with 14 games to go before the season ends and the playoffs begin.

Halfway through the first period, Wayne Larkin of Vancouver and Larry McNabb of San Francisco clashed on mid-ice in front of the Seals' bench.

Their fight was stopped, but it started again moments later at center ice. George Swarbrick of the Seals and Dunc McCallum of the Canucks meanwhile were having a much better bout 20 feet away with hard punches landed by each. Mike Harvey of San Francisco and Bob Blackburn of Vancouver had a shoving match and a free-for-all developed.

By the time the officials restored some order, they had dealt out 42 minutes of penalties, two misconducts and four fighting infractions. This made a total of 50 minutes of penalties for the 20-minute period.

During the time each squad had only three men and a goalie on the ice, there were three goals scored, two by San Francisco.

But in the last 95 seconds of the game following a scoreless second period Vancouver scored twice and won. Billy McNeill, the league's top scorer, tapped in the winner with 48 seconds to go following a goal by Larry Cahan.

Howie Hughes scored twice for Vancouver. Mike Harvey had two goals for the Seals. Phil Maloney racked up assists on all three Vancouver goals in the third period.

Cunningham Pitches San Rafael To Win

Joe Cunningham pitched a brilliant one-hitter yesterday as the San Rafael Bulldogs blanked Galileo High in a non-league baseball game at Funston Field, San Francisco, 7-0.

Cunningham recorded nine strikeouts and issued just two bases on balls en route to the win.

The Bulldogs scored their first run in the third inning as Fred Buehler, who had walked, went to third base when a Galieleo player bobbled a fly ball hit by Jim Magliulo. The two Bulldogs pulled a double steal on the next play and Buehler scored.

That was enough to win right there, but San Rafael came up with five runs in the next frame.

San Rafael Nine Tries For No. 10

Litchfield's semi-pro baseballers from San Rafael will be trying for win number 10 on their streak in San Francisco AAA Winter League action tomorrow when they tangle with Montrose Chemical at Golden Gate Park's Nealon diamond at 2 p.m.

Southpaw Bob DeRosa will start on the bill for Litchfield's, the team that is leading the league by two full games.

In the first nine games of the league slate, the San Rafael nine has totaled 59 runs to the opposition's 8. The combined efforts of DeRosa, Ron Cole and Chuck Murray have been good for an earned run average of 1.05, and Don Lauters and Doug Wilson lead the batters with .395 marks.

Analy Nine Nips Drake By One Run

Drake High School's varsity baseballers were edged by Analy High yesterday in a practice game in Sebastopol, 3-2.

But despite the defeat, Drake coach Bob Fitzhenry had praise for his team. "I thought we played well and I was satisfied with their performance," he said. Continuing, Fitzhenry singled out sophomore pitcher Bob Luiz for doing a good job. "He (Luiz) pitched three fine innings. Although he was the losing pitcher, he showed a lot of potential."

The Pirates scored first, one run in the second inning, but Analy came up with 2 runs in the third frame. Neither team tallied another run until the last inning. The winners out-hit the Pirates 5-4.

Lester Wins In Comeback Bout

OAKLAND (AP) — Fifth-ranked middleweight Jimmy Lester, 158½, of San Francisco, pounded out a unanimous 10-round decision last night over Aristeo Chavarin, 160½, of Los Mochis, Mexico, in a no-knockdown boxing bout at Oakland Auditorium.

It was the first fight for Lester since he broke his hand in his second-round knockout last Oct. 20 over Florentino Fernandez. Lester now has won 19 of 20 fights.

Judge Elmer Costa and referee Rudy Ortega each voted 7-2 for Lester. Judge Len Morrow scored 5-3 for the winner.

Novato Baseballers Whip Washington 6-1

Novato High's baseball team tallied 6 runs in the sixth inning and whipped George Washington High of San Francisco 6-1 yesterday in a practice game at Novato.

The Hornets brought up 11 men in that big sixth frame, got two hits and capitalized on two Washington errors in a game which, before all that happened, was quite a pitching duel.

The Hornets collected 4 hits with Tommy Thomas and John Youngs getting singles and Gary Dinkel's triple and single highlighting the action.

Should your son become an advertising man ...like Al?

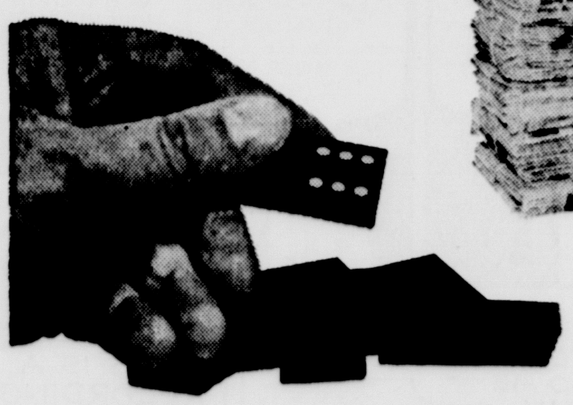

Al still finds time for his favorite hobby—travel! (He writes travel articles, too.)

Aldea Crow works for a newspaper. His job is to interest travel firms and resorts in advertising in his paper. Their advertisements help you pick a vacation spot, and the best way to get there. Many other media compete with Al's paper, so he has to work hard for his share of business. Because he has to know his business thoroughly, he's traveled nearly all over the world.

Al's a skillful advertising man. He's young—but makes a good living. He ought to, because the advertising business demands a lot of him. It's a business where the average is above average. Sometimes it's tough. Often fun. And always challenging.

Advertising's important to you, too. Good advertising is the least expensive way to tell you what's for sale. This helps you enjoy vacations; buy at lower cost; lead a fuller life. When you buy a product you saw advertised in newspapers, magazines, or on TV—or heard about on the radio—you help keep people in jobs. When you learn about a new product and buy it, you help create jobs.

But then is your son?
Why shouldn't he become an advertising man?

Today is Saturday, March 12, the 71st day of 1966 with 294 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter.

The morning star is Venus.

The evening star is Jupiter.

New York Times publisher, Adolph Ochs, was born on this day in 1858.

On this day in history:

In 1938, Germany invaded Austria.

In 1963, the House voted to grant former British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill honorary citizenship in the United States.

A thought for the day—President Franklin Roosevelt: "It is an unfortunate human failing that a full pocketbook often groans more loudly than an empty stomach."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Players Often Depend Simply Too Much On Magic Of Finesse

One of the most touching things in the world is the faith most bridge players have in the finesse.

They rely on this one device to compensate for bad bidding and to cure headaches, but one of the saddest things in the world is the way their faith is so often misplaced.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

Actually, West was too old a bird to be caught in such an elementary trap.

He stepped up with the ace of diamonds and led another club.

South ruffed again, led a low diamond to ruff in dummy and triumphantly led a spade from dummy to try a finesse with the queen.

Not everybody would have found such a clever way to get to dummy for this finesse, South thought to himself.

FINESSE LOSES

Unfortunately for South the finesse lost. West led another club, and South had to ruff again.

Now South was lucky to hold the loss down to one trick in each suit.

Down one.

little as he needed the ace of a little as needed the ace of a green suit.

When he ruffs the club return, South should draw two rounds of trumps and they run the diamonds to discard four spades from dummy.

West can take his queen of hearts whenever he likes, but he cannot stop South from discarding four spades from dummy.

South can eventually cash the ace of spades and ruff the queen of spades with dummy's remaining trump.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 2 notrump. This response should show 13 to 15 points, balanced distribution and strength in each of the unbid suits. In this case you are one point light, but you have two tens by way of compensation. It pays to stretch one point when the bid is such a good description of your hand.

What Made Roy A. Brown A Fine Publisher, Friend

THOSE WHO KNEW him best and worked with him most intimately were his greatest admirers.

It is impossible to think of a greater tribute which could be paid to a man than that.

That is the way those of us who had the privilege of working closest with Roy A. Brown felt about him.

If there is a simple explanation of his success in the newspaper business, it would be foresight.

He had an uncanny ability to see beyond the immediate circumstances of any situation.

Also, he placed a high value on excellence.

As each of the major expansions of the I-J was taking place over the past 30 years, his planning always took into account today's needs, tomorrow's probable needs and long range future needs, as well as the need to achieve higher degrees of excellence.

As a result, no newspaper of the I-J's size in all of the country is better equipped mechanically than the I-J. Many new processes and new techniques have been pioneered and perfected in the I-J mechanical department over the years.

IN COMMON WITH all really great newspapermen, Roy A. Brown always held subscribers in highest regard. Although it had been many, many years since he personally turned a hand in the mechanical department, he nevertheless felt a great personal sense of failure when the paper was late or when printing quality was less than excellent. It was as if he took personal responsibility for letting his subscribers down by failing even for one day to deliver the highest quality newspaper possible, on time.

Even his very last comments on I-J content (made only last week) were aimed at bringing about improvements in the volume and quality of news and pictures delivered to subscribers.

It probably can accurately be said that almost nothing will happen to the I-J in the next five to 10 years that he hadn't anticipated and discussed with the appropriate department heads.

The shadow of his guiding hand will be with us for a long, long time to come.

In common with all really great executives, he had the capacity to delegate responsibilities to subordinates. Sometimes, when a subordinate found himself making a minor error in judgement, the unfortunate one could look over his shoulder and see the "boss" chuckling. Roy Brown, it would turn out, had foreseen the error but tolerantly "didn't want to interfere." It was apparent that he quietly enjoyed seeing the less experienced learn by making a few relatively unimportant mistakes.

THOSE OF US WHO worked closely with him knew Roy Brown as a devoted husband, father and grandfather. He shared every joy and every sorrow of his wife, his son, his daughter, and his five grandchildren.

He was deprived of the joys of close-knit family living as he was growing up. His mother died in his early childhood and he was reared by grandparents and aunts. He seemed to make up for that childhood lack by extra-close family relationships in his later life.

And his concern for wife, children and grandchildren didn't end with his own family. It extended, too, to many of the long-time employees of the I-J of whom he had grown very fond over the years.

The high ideals which guided him in life were traceable to his youthful participation in the Knights of King Arthur's Boys' Club, a Chautauqua (N.Y.) project. In recent years he had intensified his interest in Christianity and strengthened his ties with the Presbyterian Church.

He not only supported organized charitable and welfare activities, he occasionally was the secret benefactor of some bereft person.

WHEN MARIN COUNTY'S first newspaper, the Marin Journal, was founded 105 years ago, its very first editor wrote that the Journal would be dedicated to supporting all those things which were good for the people of Marin County and opposing with equal vigor all those things which were bad for Marin.

Under Roy Brown's guidance, the San Rafael Independent and the Independent-Journal (the direct descendant of the original Marin Journal) has faithfully followed those same precepts.

It has been said that the modern, new Independent-Journal plant soon to be completed will stand as a monument to his progressive spirit and his foresight.

While this is true, he will leave an even greater monument in the hearts and minds of those of us who were closely associated with him.

ONE OF THE most valuable earthly blessings a man can have is a good boss.

Those of us who have worked directly for and with Roy A. Brown were blessed with the finest possible boss.

In the language of the time, "He was the greatest." Our lives can never be the same again without him.

PRACTICE LEADS TO PUSH-UP RECORD

A world record for push-ups—6,006 of them in just under four hours—is claimed by a high school junior in Winnetka, Ill.

The 16-year-old youth told admirers that he trained two and one-half years for the feat.

The previous record, held by a U. S. Marine, stood at 5,000.

On school days, with studies and all, he would do 1,750 nonstop push-ups. But on weekends he upped the count to 3,000.

Apart from what else such a physical feat may prove, it shows that determination and basic ability—man's gifts from his Creator—can, together, achieve arduous goals.

Make up your mind to use your potential not only for personal advancement, but to assist the poor, the neglected and the downtrodden.

"For it is God Who of His good pleasure works in you both the will and the performance." (Philippians 2:13)

Help me to live up to the good you know I can accomplish, Lord.

Why Not Offer Alternate Sites

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It seems that the school board in the San Geronimo area is planning to resubmit the school expansion proposition to the voters in June.

The proposition has been voted down twice, now—apparently not because the voters do not want to expand or improve their school facilities, but because the majority do not approve of the site being offered by the proponents of the measure.

In order to accomplish the worthy aim of obtaining more and better schools for the children of the area, would it not seem wiser to offer the voters a choice of several alternate sites? If this were done, perhaps the financing and other features of the proposal would be accepted by the majority of voters; and then work could be begun.

To continue to offer the school proposition in the same form, when it has been rejected twice, appears foolish, and wasteful of taxpayers' money which must be expended to set up repeated elections.

Generosity In Palsy Campaign

Editor, Independent-Journal:

On behalf of United Cerebral Palsy of Marin, Inc. and the handicapped people and their families who receive help from our organization, I wish to express our appreciation to the residents of Marin County for their generosity during our fund raising campaign this year.

We have reached two-thirds of our goal of $8,500 in our mail-out campaign. This is most gratifying, and we are hopeful that we will be able to obtain our goal in the near future. Incidentally, in Marin County we do not receive financial assistance from any other charitable organization.

We will be pleased to provide additional information about our organization, and we hope anyone interested in assisting with the program of United Cerebral Palsy of Marin, Inc. will contact us.

What We Get From Viet Nam

Editor, Independent-Journal:

To those Americans who advocate continued involvment in Viet Nam, I offer the following from an early 19th century almanac:

When after many battles past,
Both tir'd with blows, make peace at last,
What is it, after all, the people get?

Nurses Need More Pay, Too

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I wish to express my hearty agreement with your editorial of Feb. 23, regarding the hiring of a medical coordinator and publicist for Marin General Hospital. It seems that the hospital has too many highly paid chiefs and too few highly paid Indians.

At last month's meeting of the Marin Nurses' Assn., the head nurse in the cardiac unit described her duties and responsibilities for which she receives the same salary as a head nurse on any other unit. The head nurse and her staff have been specially trained and certificated by local physicians to start and maintain oxygen therapy at their discretion, to start rotating tourniquets in acute pulmonary edema, to attach electrodes and maintain constant cardiac monitoring, to perform closed chest cardiac massage manually, to use equipment to assist respirations, to use and regulate the external pacemaker if cardiac arrest occurs, and to prepare for and perform defibrillation if a doctor is not present on the unit at the time of discovery of cardiac arrest . . .

For this kind of efficiency the head nurse is paid $427 per month and staff nurses are paid $420. The head nurse is actually paid $2.67 per hour . . .

A registered nurse is the most versatile employee for the money, since she can do everything that needs to be done in a hospital from scrubbing floors to defibrillating patients. The fact that she assumes the duties of physicians does not seem to entitle her to the salary earned by a good secretary.

As a recent patient in Marin General, I can say that the nursing care is most solicitous, and the food and equipment are good. Room rates are one of the best bargains in the Bay Area. When they raise the rates again, don't believe that it is because of the salaries paid to nurses.

Tunnel Points Are Well Made

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your editorial of Feb. 28 regarding the Puerto Suello tunnel is timely and to the point.

As a real estate person, it is most difficult to try and explain our high taxes to prospective buyers. You have pointed out two of the causes. Higher taxes because of lack of industry to help carry the load and higher building costs due to increased rail freight rates as a result of shipments having to be handled by one or two more railroads than were used prior to the closing of the tunnel. Some customers had to turn to highway transport which is ordinarily more expensive on some commodities than via normal rail service, but lower than the circuitous rail routing. Others decided to move rather than live with the uncertain transportation situation.

An industry such as a railroad has to pay their own repair and maintenance bills without access to tax funds. It is understandable therefore, that they must cut down wherever possible.

Nevertheless, as a home owner in Sausalito, it is with a great deal of concern that the past five years has seen a decline in industry in Southern Marin, rather than a normal growth. During this same time, the case has been making the continuing rounds from the Public Utilities Commission, to the Interstate Commerce Commission, to the courts and is all the same as playing Russian roulette with an appreciable segment of the economy of Southern Marin.

Johnson Quietly Cocking Guns To Shoot Down Inflation, If . . .

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is sticking to its wait-and-see position on inflation but is readying a big gun—increased taxes—if needed to stop an inflationary breakthrough later.

WHEN THAT TIME might come in the opinion of the administration, if ever, is still anybody's guess.

But the Treasury is hard at work on a kit of ready-to-use plans for temporary tax boosts, and the pressures on President Johnson to send them to Congress soon were heightened this week by further signs of a heating economy.

One was Johnson's own disclosure that industry's plant and equipment spending plans call for a rise of roughly 16 per cent in 1966, a bit larger than the 1965 increase. Another was Tuesday's report that joblessness dropped to 3.7 per cent in February, a decline much greater than expected.

Johnson has given notice he will move promptly for higher taxes "if such action appears necessary." But his advisers want first to see the effect of the House-approved $4.8-billion stop-gap tax package passed by the Senate Thursday. Neither the White House nor Congress wants another tax boost if it can be avoided—especially in an election year.

OTHER anti-inflation tools, short of a tax increase, are available. Some are in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board, which has independent status and need not wait for an administration signal to use them. It has used one already —an increase in the discount rate.

This is the rate charged by the Federal Reserve Banks for borrowings by banks which are members of the system. The increase in December from 4 to 4.5 per cent was designed to discourage mounting demands on banks for credit.

There has been recent speculation that a further increase was being considered. The board replies that it never comments on rumors. A spokesman says it is too early to assess the full impact on the December rise.

THE DISCOUNT rate is now at its highest level since the Roaring Twenties, a fact which might prompt the board to turn to other measures if it feels further monetary restraint is needed.

One possibility, seldom invoked in recent years, would be to boost reserve requirements of banks belonging to the system. This would force banks to hold more of their deposits in reserve and leave them less money to lend.

Large banks in major cities must retain 16.5 per cent of their demand deposits—checking account funds, for example —as reserves. For other banks the requirement is 12 per cent. Legally, the rate could be raised as high as 22 per cent for major banks and 14 per cent for other banks.

There are indications that the board's money-tightening moves—it also authorized a 5.5 per cent interest rate last December on time deposits—are having an effect. The total money supply—currency plus demand deposits — decreased by $300 million during February. The supply had reached a peak the first week in January.

If the President seeks another tax boost later, one possibility would be repeal of the 7 per cent investment credit. That would discourage the soaring outlays for industrial plants and equipment.

THE ULTIMATE anti-inflationary tool—wage and price controls—is generally considered a wartime measure and has been given little serious attention. Officials view it only as a last resort.

Civilian Reviews May Enhance Police Status

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG JR.

New York's Mayor Lindsay has announced his intention to expand his police department's complaint review board to include a majority of civilians. By so doing, he has unleashed a hornet's nest. Protests have come loud and clear from citizens worried that the policeman's power to fight crime will be impaired, as well as from policemen themselves, who fear that they will be at the mercy of individuals unfamiliar with the problems involved. I believe that these fears are unjustified.

CREATION OF A citizen-controlled review board is imperative for a number of reasons, not the least of which is the protection of the reputation of the police department itself. That small minority of policemen who take bribes, solicit graft, and give their prejudices free rein, hiding behind their badges and misusing their power, are the only ones who should fear such a board. The vast majority of decent and honest policemen are besmirched by this group's activities and should welcome an impartial review board which will ferret out wrongdoers and thereby maintain high standards, increasing the respect due law enforcement officials.

A citizen-controlled review board is also necessary for proper functioning of democratic principles.

As Clemenceau once said, "War is too serious a matter to leave to soldiers," so crime is too important to leave to police officers. The principle of civilian control of military and quasi-military organizations has always been basic to democracy, as is the principle of the accountability of public officials to the citizenry.

When a citizen has a complaint to lodge against a member of an organization as powerful as the police department, he is entitled to get a fair hearing before a public body made up of members not directly a part of the department, members who can bring a greater sense of independence to their judgments.

The accused patrolman will have his rights protected at such a hearing, and, if he is exonerated, will not have the suspicion hanging over him that the decision was "fixed," which is likely in a purely departmental hearing.

PERHAPS THE GREATEST problem facing the policeman in our great cities is the tension which exists between them and minority groups who, for the most part, are concentrated in ghetto areas. Most Negroes in our cities come from the South, where the policeman is most often seen as the brutal defender of segregationist practices.

Even in the North, many policemen seem to operate under a double standard—one set of rules for dealing with white people, another, more harsh, for dealing with Negroes. Policemen are drawn from all walks of life and share the prejudices which many people have.

The problem is that policemen must not only be more honest than most people, but also must lay his prejudices aside in the performance of his duties.

There have been a number of instances in recent years where policemen have abused minority group members in situations which would not have occurred had the victims been white. It is this unfairness which a civilian board can correct. By providing a forum for the impartial handling of charges of abuse of authority, the existence of such a board will ease the tensions which now are so harmful.

The Country Parson

"I've known needy folks who didn't know they needed help because they were so busy helping others."

RIOTING IN NICARAGUA—Many persons in the Central American country of Nicaragua feel there may be "another Santo Domingo" if the ruling Somoza family remains in power. Although there is a figurehead president, the head of the national guard, General Somoza, may be the next president in voting next year. This was the scene during voting three years ago. Police had to put down a demonstration against the Somoza regime then. (AP Wirephoto)

Another Santo Domingo Is Feared In Nicaragua

By DANIEL JAMES Advance News Service

The talk comes not only from the opposition to the Somoza family, which has ruled Nicaragua for three decades, but also from neutrals and even from people who think the current president, Rene Schick, has done a good job although he was handpicked by the Somozas.

"Nicaragua will become another Santo Domingo by the end of this government's term or the beginning of the next"—in May 1967.

Talk of "another Santo Domingo"—a chaotic bloodletting such as has occurred in the Dominican Republic — arises from fear that Gen. Anastasio Somoza Jr. will become the next president.

Paradoxically, Nicaragua is enjoying the fifth straight year of unprecedented economic expansion. Cotton exports, the country's leading source of income, have tripled in that time and have formed the basis of an unprecedented industrial boom.

The economy has flourished in the relative freedom and even democracy permitted under President Schick. Though a product of the Somoza machine, he has exhibited a certain independence of it. As a result, a state of "great relaxation" has resulted, to use the phrase of a U.S. official.

But General Somoza, who heads the 4,000-man national guard, has put his hat in the presidential ring although elections are a year away, and that has begun to create uncertainty. Schick says the campaigning is "premature" and "is creating political tensions."

Many Nicaraguans fear that General Somoza would be a tough dictator, like his father, and that a wave of cruel repression would set in again as it did after the father's assassination in 1955. The repression was carried out by General Somoza, who then developed a reputation for extreme cruelty.

Though "Tachito," as he is called, is said to have grown more "mature" since those days, and there are critics who think he might even make a fair president, people in general seem tired of the Somozas and long for a break with the past.

The feeling is not unlike that which prevailed in the Dominican Republic toward the end of the Trujillo dictatorship.

It seems particularly true of the "new wave" of businessmen, who have come up with the boom and are young and progressive and want a modern government.

Fear of dictatorship under Tachito is mainly at the bottom of talk of "another Santo Domingo," but there are other important sources of worry as well.

One is that the agrarian reform has been a failure, according to President Schick himself. That means that the age-old problem of a great landless peasantry remains, and with it the ever-present possibility of violence in the countryside. Last year there was at least one publicly acknowledged case of land invasion by the poor peasants.

Another perpetual source of concern is the repeated failure to hold free elections, which is gradually eroding popular faith in democratic ideals and institutions. That, someday, might make the people susceptible to such demogogic slogans as Fidel Castro's, "elections, for what?"

Third, it is said that there is division within the national guard today. That, as in the case of the Dominican army, could provoke a military-led revolt, some Nicaraguans hold.

The Communists here are not strong, but some have infiltrated the government and they have behind them a guerrilla tradition. The tradition goes back to the mid-1920s, when the popular Gen. Augustino Sandino fought the U.S. Marines in the jungles of Nicaragua. The guerrilla movement was revived after 1959 with the help of Fidel Castro. Young Nicaraguan extremists have been shuttling back and forth between here and Cuba for guerrilla training, over a period of years.

The oft-heard gloomy forecasts are not shared by at least some high American officials here. Assuming that General Somoza will be elected president next February, they say it could happen Nicaraguan prosperity and relative political freedom will continue.

But the worst could happen, too. The present growing uncertainty is precisely over which turn events will take a year from now.

JOBLESS INSURANCE OVERHAUL

Congress Facing Tough, Controversial Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is about to go to work in earnest on President Johnson's proposal (HR-8282) for a major overhaul of the state-federal unemployment insurance system.

Indications are that the House Ways and Means Committee, after several weeks of closed-door sessions beginning next week, will recommend some changes, but not the sweeping revision Johnson requested.

Every one of the administration's proposals for changing the system—an early creation of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal and run by a unique federal-state partnership — is controversial.

In recent weeks, congressmen have been hearing especially from hospitals and educational institutions whose employes would be brought in, and whose payrolls would be subject to tax, if the administration bill became law.

Johnson has asked for:

1. A supplementary federal compensation program that would pick up long-term unemployed when they exhausted their benefits under state plans. The additional federal benefits would be available as long as 26 weeks.

2. Extension of unemployment insurance coverage to some five million workers now outside the system—principally employees of small firms, nonprofit organizations and large farms.

3. Increases in the payroll tax to finance the additional federal benefits and give additional help to states. The maximum annual wage on which the tax is applied, set at $3,000 during the depression of the 1930s, would increase to $5,600 in 1967 and to $6,600 in 1971. At that level it would match the new Social Security tax base established with the enactment of Medicare last year. There would also be an increase of .15 per cent in the employer tax rate.

4. Federal standards to which, for the first time, the various state plans would have to conform. These would include benefits of at least half weekly wages, up to 26 weeks. Workers could receive benefits while taking job training. States would be limited in the penalties they could impose in the form of benefit suspension for infractions.

Debate of these proposals began when the committee held hearings last August. In general, proponents say:

The federal legislation, which, unlike Social Security, has not changed over the years, is overdue for updating. Benefit payment levels, although higher in dollars, are lower in proportion to wages than they were when the first payments were made in 1939. Twenty-four per cent of workers are still not covered and only 40 per cent of the unemployed at one time are drawing benefits.

The character of unemployment has changed, and although the proportion of workers unemployed has fallen from 20 per cent during the great depression to 4 per cent, a worker who loses his job now is likely to be unemployed longer because job skills and requirements have changed so fast. During two recessions, Congress had to enact emergency legislation for workers who had exhausted their benefits.

Opponents say:

While the basic federal law is unchanged, various states have steadily upgraded their plans. The steep tax increase proposed for the next five years, in almost every case falling entirely on employers, would be a hardship. Payrolls already are being taxed to the hilt for Social Security and Medicare, as well as unemployment insurance. The limits on penalties would invite abuses. Over all, the greatly strengthened federal influence in the system would destroy the successful and flexible federal-state basis on which it was set up.

On the specific issue of extending coverage, hospitals point to the steady increase in their costs, outpacing greatly the national average, and say an additional payroll tax would add to the burden on patients.

Of the workers who would be newly covered under the Johnson proposals, about 1.8 million would be brought in by including employers with as few as one employee, instead of a minimum of four. Another 1.7 million would be employees of the presently exempt non-profit organizations, about half of them hospitals and a third educational institutions. Inclusion of farmhands, from establishments using a substantial amount of hired labor, and of certain agricultural processing employees, would add about a million more.

HATS IN AND OUT OF ELECTION RING

Yorty Challenges Brown, DeLotto Against Cranston, Bennet Vs. Lynch

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Samuel W. Yorty, the twice-elected mayor of Los Angeles, has tossed his hat into the race for the Democratic nomination for governor and his challenging of Gov. Edmund G. Brown was greeted by most Democratic officeholders with about as much enthusiasm as an empty CARE package.

However, Yorty, who has lost about as many elections as he has won, is not accustomed to being cast in the loner role. In his first election as mayor of the nation's largest city, Yorty appeared to have everyone against him but the voters.

There was never much doubt that, if Yorty entered the race and gave Brown his first primary contest in three campaigns for the governorship, it would be a free-swinging affair. And Yorty's announcement was pretty much true to form: He charged Brown was a tired and reluctant candidate and accused him of operating a shoddy political machine.

Yorty said Brown's administration and been trying to sabotage his mayoralty administration had been trying to owed no obligations to the party.

Governor Brown said the primary election was a free and open contest but felt Yorty was entering it in the wrong party — "he has always reserved his bitterest attacks for Democrats, not Republicans." Brown said it was common knowledge Yorty's campaign funds would be coming from Republicans.

Other Democratic office-holders, including State Controller Alan Cranston and Assemblyman Jerome R. Waldie, O-Antioch, Democratic leader of the Assembly, were not complimentary in acknowledging Yorty's entry. Less critical were Glenn M. Anderson and Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh.

The Democrats, meanwhile had another admitted "rock the boat" candidate opposing an incumbent. Bert DeLotto, former assemblyman from Fresno, announced he would oppose Cranston for the Democratic nomination for state controller. DeLotto currently is a Fresno County supervisor. He served two terms in the Assembly from 1959-63 and later spent 14 months in Africa with the Peace Corps.

DeLotto said he was a supporter of Governor Brown but felt a change was needed in the controller's office. He said he felt the present system of the controller's appointing inheritance tax appraisers must go and charged a network of the controllers were running operations of the California Democratic Council.

Still another Democratic candidate continued to stir up troubles. William M. Bennett, member of the public utilities commission who is running against Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, charged the state may be in for another liquor scandal of the proportions of that turned up in the early 1950's. However, Bennett has not elaborated on his charges and the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is at a loss as to the basis for Bennett's fears.

To round out a big Democratic week, Sen. John C. Begovich, D-Jackson, charged there was an attempt made to bribe him out of running for the new Third Senate District through a job offer. Begovich is opposing Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-West Point, for election to the new sprawling district.

The senator would not say who made the job offer or what it was.

RISE OF A MIDDLE CLASS

There Are African Revolutions —None Of Them Support Peking

By RICHARD F. NEWCOMB
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A couple of years ago Chou En-Lai said: "An excellent revolutionary situation prevails in Africa."

The Chinese Communist leader was quite right, but not exactly in the way he envisioned. There have been a dozen or so revolutions since, none of them pro-Chinese.

In the past four months alone there have been eight governmental upheavals among the new countries of Africa. Almost all came from the same roots:

1. The unhappy discovery that independence and automatic prosperity were not synonymous.

2. The rise of a new middle class (civil servants, intellectuals, army) disgusted with the waste and corruption of individual dictators.

Nov. 11	Rhodesia
Nov. 25	Congo (Leopoldville)
Dec. 22	Dahomey
	1966
Jan. 1	Central African Repub.
Jan. 3	Upper Volta
Jan. 16	Nigeria
Feb. 22	Uganda
Feb. 24	Ghana

Rhodesia was a special case. There a white minority of 220,000 declared its independence from Britain to preserve rule over 4 million blacks. Britain retaliated with an economic blockade, principally cutting off petroleum, but the government of Prime Minister Ian Smith is still riding out the storm.

The other seven countries already had black governments. In each case the military emerged as the most stable force in countries beset by poverty, tribal warfare, political nepotism. In four of the countries—Dahomey, Central African Republic, Upper Volta and Ghana—the Chinese brand of communism got a bloody nose.

Gen. Christophe Soglo deposed the provisional president of Dahomey and gave the Chinese ambassador 72 hours to leave. Soglo, ex-paratrooper with a French wife, had fought with the French against the Viet Cong in Viet Nam. So had Col. Jean Bedel Bokassa, who took over from his cousin, President David Dacko, in the Central African Republic. Bokassa, who holds the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre from his fighting days with the Free French in World War II, severed relations with Communist China.

In Upper Volta, Lt. Col. Sangoule Lamizana ousted President Maurice Yaneogo, who was the first to welcome the move. The president said his rule was being threatened by Joseph Ouedraoga, a Communist union leader. He said Ouedraogo wanted to hand over power to Peking and Ghana.

In Ghana, while the president was away, the military made its play. It ousted Kwame Nkrumah, who had named himself president for life and crowned himself Osagyefo, "Redeemer".

The other three upheavals:

Uganda—Prime Minister Milton Obote moved one step ahead of his enemies. He suspended the constitution, arrested five of his cabinet ministers and put his own man in charge of the army, Col. Idi Amin, 42.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Maj. Stafford Myers, of Newport, Wash., crash-landed his plane on an airstrip in South Viet Nam this week and almost literally jumped from the frying pan into the fire.

The airstrip was located outside the A Shau Special Forces camp about to be overrun by Communist North Viet Nam regulars.

It appeared as if his future participation in the war, if not his very life, was at stake.

With utter disregard for his own safety, Fisher set his prop-driven fighter plane down on the air strip which by now had become a raging battleground.

He managed to scramble aboard while Communist .50 caliber machine gun bullets whined around him. Fisher taxied his plane down the runway, gave it full throttle and soon was airborne and headed for safety.

"This is the most daring rescue I have heard of since World War II," a veteran Air Force officer said afterward. "I can't think of anything we did in Korea to match it."

"It was the bravest thing I have ever seen a pilot do," said another pilot who had witnessed the episode from the air. "I think the Communists were so amazed they just stopped what they were doing and watched it."

Around The World, Around The Clock

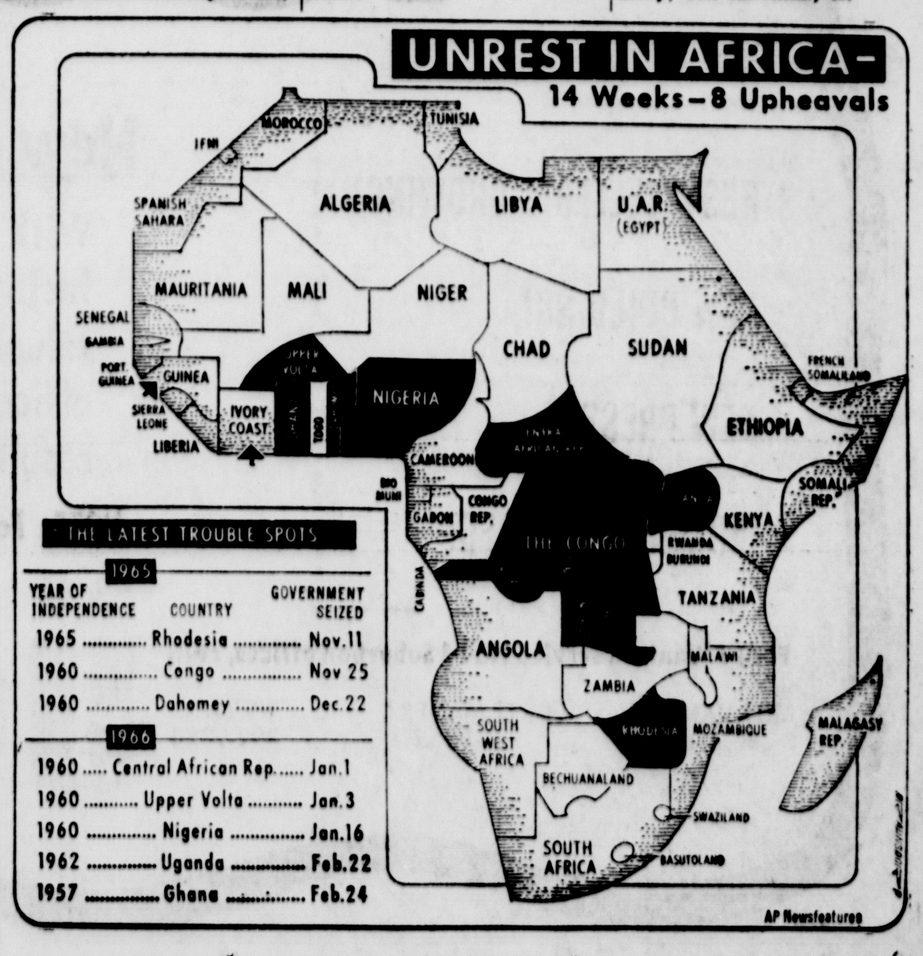

Washington: An exchange of notes between French President Charles de Gaulle and President Lyndon B. Johnson indicated that the French leader would continue his piecemeal withdrawal from NATO. President Johnson sent a letter to Chancellor Erhard of West Germany trying to gain German support in the row with France.

Dublin: Police blamed members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army for the bombing of Nelson manument in the heart of Dublin. The top third of the column was shattered in the explosion.

Washington: President Johnson asked Congress to authorize an all-out war on crime including controls on the sale of weapons.

Marin's Expert On The Middle East

College Teacher Leads Probe Of One Of The Troubled Spots

By MARGARET WEHRING

"World conflict areas" has recently emerged as a new specialized study field in United States and English academic communities.

Powell Ownby of San Anselmo, who spent 10 years in Saudi Arabia and the surrounding lands, has been engaged in continued study of one of those areas—the Middle East and its problems—since returning from that region in 1956.

Ownby is currently teaching a course entitled "The Middle East: Patterns of Conflict and Compromise" in the adult education program of College of Marin.

"I WANT TO focus on the shifting picture of this rapidly changing area by discussing the history, the peoples, and the current problems of the Middle East," he says. "Particularly, I want the students to consider the role of Western nations and to search out paths of understanding."

Many people today, Ownby points out, even those who are sincerely trying to keep themselves informed on world events, have found it difficult to get a clear picture of the Middle East and its multiplicity of cultures.

A graduate of Stanford University with an M. A. Degree in Education, he worked for 10 years with the training department of the Arabian-American Oil Co., in Saudi Arabia.

There he studied Arabic and helped bring knowledge of the language to American employees of the company.

SERVING AS senior specialist for adult Arab training, he gained firsthand knowledge of values and attitudes of the native population. He also established the first night school for Arab adults in an Arab community.

Since his return to the United States, Ownby had maintained a close interest in organizations studying the special problems of the Middle East: Economic, political, cultural, and health. Last year he attended and was a participant in a seminar conducted by the American Assembly (one of 60 people invited from the Bay Area) on the Mid-East conflict, held in San Francisco. On Jan. 29 of this year he participated in a panel discussion entitled "American-Arab Relations" before a student group at the University of California at Berkeley.

A member of the World Affairs Council of Northern California and American Friends of the Middle East, he has published articles on the Middle East, his most recent being "Mapmakers for Health in the Middle East" in Viewpoints. He spends most of his free time working on additional material for publication.

TEACHING COMES naturally to Ownby, since he taught one year at Madera High School and three at Sacramento High School following his graduation from Stanford University.

"I would like to have people inter-relate the basic cultural patterns of this complex area, to help them understand some of the cultural roots which go back to ancient ages," he says when asked why he was offering the College of Marin course.

"Each local area has problems, conflicts which can be traced back through history. It is my hope that we can find areas of compromise which might lead to at least partial solutions of some of these problems."

Living in the Middle East, Ownby says, one becomes aware of the rising expectations and aspirations of diverse but related cultures — urban, rural and desert people representing the Asian sub-continent and Iran in the East, Turkey and the states fronting the eastern Mediterranean, the countries of the Red Sea, and of the Arabian Peninsula stretching northward into the heart of ancient Mesopotamia.

"THIS GREAT mosaic of approximately 90 million people face common problems of regional stability, economic growth, social and political advancement. To live together with differing ideologies, to relinquish inherited biases and abandon acquired prejudices — these are some of the difficult tasks facing the whole region," Ownby summarizes.

His course covers the geographic conditions which led to a multiplicity of cultures and which provoked mass migrations. And it outlines the maze of ancient governments, showing how one became superimposed upon another.

Stress is placed on religious ideas, Judaic, Christian, and Islamic, which have played such dominant roles in shaping the area's cultural, political, and economic history. Such topics as the Crusades and the Ottoman Empire are given special emphasis.

"ANY COURSE in the Middle East must examine the involvement of outside nations, including the United States, during and since the two World Wars. We should try to get behind the exploding headlines which highlight some of the conflicts of the area," Ownby says.

"Through analysis I think we can understand the cultures of the Middle East; through understanding we may come to appreciate cultures quite different from our own.

"Hopefully we can arrive at temperate positions on crucial issues."

The Choir Director: Her Guys And Dolls

By DON KEOWN

WORKING WITH the chorus of the Novato Community Club production of the musical comedy "Guys and Dolls," Mrs. Stanley Bliss finds her duties not so very different from her regular assignment as choir director for the Novato Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The idea, she says, is to get the best possible performance from your singers, whether the music be religious or popular.

Choir director Mrs. Stanley Bliss of Novato has been working with two different kinds of singing groups these days.

She has been carrying on with her regular duties as choir director for the Novato Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

And, in addition, she has been handling the temporary assignment of directing the chorus for the Novato Community Club Inc. production of the musical comedy, "Guys and Dolls," that the Novato Community Club opened last night for a run of two weekends in the Novato Community House.

TWO SUCH diverse groups must require some very different directing techniques on her part?

Not at all, says Mrs. Bliss.

"People are people, and the idea is to get as good singing as possible out of your choir, whether the music be religious or popular."

There is some difference, she admits, in the attitude taken by the two groups toward their singing.

"WITH A church choir," she explains, "it is a calling—a matter of dedication. There is nothing haphazard about it.

"With a community theater, it is more a side activity, not a part of the singers' daily living. We have to fit our rehearsals into their schedules. And sometimes it poses a hardship to expect these people to turn out for a practice."

But Mrs. Bliss adds: "It's not a matter of lack of enthusiasm. The members of the chorus for 'Guys and Dolls' are very enthusiastic. And generally, our rehearsal turnouts were very good. But it is just a matter of keeping your perspective and being reasonable in your expectations of the time and energy that you can demand of your singers."

HER CURRENT responsibilities as musical director for "Guys and Dolls" represents Mrs. Bliss' first experience with community theater. But behind her is a rich background in music of other kinds. And in that background also lies the reason why she seldom fails to turn her television set on week nights at 11:20 o'clock to Channel 5.

The star of "The Merv Griffin Show" is a friend and neighbor from earlier years in San Mateo.

Mrs. Bliss' own singing began as a grade school girl in Sacramento when she, then Marie Roberts, and her sister, Lois, now Mrs. Carl L. Pierce of Lorenzo, Idaho, began appearing at church socials as The Roberts Sisters.

THEN, IN 1940, the family moved to San Mateo. The sisters continued to appear at church and school affairs. And living in the same block was a talented youngster named Mervin Griffin, but known to family and friends as Buddy, who was just two or three years ahead of Marie in school.

When the American Women's Voluntary Service organized a troupe of local talent from San Mateo to entertain the men in the military hospitals it was natural that "Buddy" Griffin and the Roberts Sisters should wind up among its members.

There was no indication then, Mrs. Bliss says, that Griffin was headed for fame in the entertainment world.

"He was just one of the bunch," she says.

GRIFFIN, SHE says, was accompanist for the sisters in their numbers. He sometimes sang "the saucier songs." And he was the "emcee" and an adept one.

"I can't see that he has changed a lot, except for the loss of 40 or 50 pounds," she says.

The appearances in the military hospitals of those World War II years were a moving and a satisfying experience, she says. And she recalls how the men in the wards would urge she and her sister, with lights out, to sing "Goodnight, Sweetheart" before they left for the evening.

SHE REMEMBERS, too, that Griffin "cut" a couple of records with four girls singing in the background, she and Lois among them. "But they didn't sell."

With the close of the war, Marie Roberts considered briefly a career as a professional singer. Instead, she was married and became Mrs. Stanley Bliss. "And since then, I have limited my musical activities to the church and its youth groups."

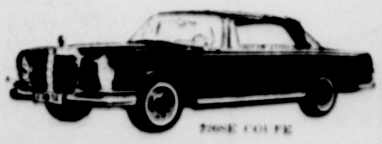

THE BLISSES lived in San Mateo until moving to Marin some months ago, and there Mrs. Bliss was choir director for the San Mateo and Burlingame wards of the Latter Day Saints Church, and also active in the musical activities of the youth group, Mutual Improvement Assn. She was, for a time, state musical director for LDS Sunday schools and the youth association.

"WHY DO ELASTIC WAISTBANDS STRETCH?"

It does seem strange that elastic should stretch out of shape simply in cleaning. Many trousers today, for both women and men, are made with elastic waistbands. A frequent complaint is loss of elasticity.

As we have mentioned before, stretch-type waistbands are made of a rubber core wrapped in cotton. Frequently the cotton chafes the rubber weakening it. In the cleaning the weakened rubber breaks, stretching the waistband.

The National Institute of Drycleaning recently made a special study of this subject. It reached the conclusion that a further contributing factor in this stretching is due to steaming and pulling the waist area before the waistband is thoroughly dry. Because the waistband is thick and dries slowly, N.I.D. suggests that before the trousers are pressed, they should be hung in the open air for several hours, even though they have tumbled dry. Remember, do not pull the waistband area before it is thoroughly dry.

"I WAS SO carried away by my enjoyment of the musical revue, 'The Fling,' that I agreed to take on the job," Mrs. Bliss says.

Says Wright of her work: "We are thrilled by the fact that she is getting music out of people who never felt that they could sing. She is making a lot of people happy by bringing out in them a talent they didn't realize they had."

Mrs. Bliss, in turn, says she is pleased with the progress of her charges.

"A GOOD nine-tenths of them have had no voice training or professional experience," she says. "I'm thrilled at their showing. And I'm certain our audiences are going to be pleased with them as well."

"Guys and Dolls" will play tonight and again on March 18 and 19. Curtain time for the musical, based on the Damon Runyon story, is 8:30 p.m.

"It marks our first attempt at a musical play, except for those written by our own members," says Wright. "We're determined to put it over."

And if the hoped-for success is attained, then no small amount of credit will belong to choir director Marie Bliss.

MRS. STANLEY BLISS runs over musical score from "Guys and Dolls" with two of the principals from the Novato Community Club production, Vincent McGovern as Nathan Detroit, and Lois Wright, as Miss Adelaide. The musical opened last night in the Novato Community House, and plays again this evening and next Friday and Saturday. (Independent-Journal photos)

Help On Home Front For Fighting Men

Red Cross Serves Families Of Those Sent To Viet Nam

His mother contacted the American Red Cross and requested that effort be made to obtain an emergency leave for the serviceman who was fighting in Viet Nam.

With the mother's permission, the social worker at the Red Cross' Marin County Chapter contacted the father's doctor who gave her a diagnostic statement of the man's condition and advised that presence of the serviceman was necessary. The social worker then transmitted the information to the Red Cross field director covering the serviceman's unit in Viet Nam. Upon receipt of the message, the field director promptly notified the man's commanding officer, who at once granted the serviceman leave to return home.

THE SERVICEMAN arrived home in time to be with his father several days before he died.

But the serviceman still needed to help his family following his father's death. So he contacted the Marin Red Cross and asked their aid again in obtaining an extension of his leave. Through the same channels as before, leave extension was granted and he was able to remain an additional week to help his mother settle his father's affairs.

In addition, the serviceman required financial assistance to take care of personal needs, and this, too, was provided by the Marin County chapter.

BUT NOT ALL of the cases in this Red Cross social worker's files are as dramatic as this one. She also serves as an informal counselor and a friend to the serviceman's wife and his family.

Recently, a Marin serviceman was sent to Viet Nam, leaving his wife to care for four small children. The serviceman had always handled budgeting and money matters, and made all major decisions involving the family. When he was sent overseas, the mother was overwhelmed with all of these responsibilities.

She contacted the Marin Red Cross for help, and a social worker advised her on how to make her burden lighter, and helped to reduce her anxiety over the safety of her husband.

In addition to services such as these, one of the heaviest "home front" jobs of the Red Cross is investigation of a breakdown in communications between the serviceman and his family.

Often when a serviceman is sent to Viet Nam or other remote areas, mail does not catch up with him for several weeks. He may then go to the Red Cross field director on duty and ask that he have the chapter in his home town get in touch with his family and assure him that they are well and safe. The local Red Cross social worker then visits the family and transmits a report of their welfare back to the Red Cross field director in Viet Nam, who relays the reassuring message to the serviceman.

THE RED CROSS will also arrange for someone to come into the home and take care of children if a serviceman's wife must go into the hospital—and he is not able to obtain a leave. It will give financial assistance to the serviceman's wife if her allotment check is delayed or lost.

And it gives layettes for the Men In Viet Nam Look For Help To The Red Cross

Professionals And Volunteers Available To Serve Families

The Red Cross helps veterans, too.

A motor service driver will take a disabled veteran to visits at the Veterans Administration Clinic, drive dependents to visit him if he is confined to the hospital, and render financial assistance pending receipt of his first service connected compensation check.

To the serviceman stationed in wartorn Viet Nam or anywhere in the world, the Red Cross is a friend from home. To his family here, it is the link between that serviceman and his family. Wherever American servicemen go, the Red Cross is within reach.

Now, in Viet Nam, more than 100 American National Red Cross personnel are on duty serving our men in the armed forces.

Here in Marin the Marin County Chapter's caseload of Services to military families has increased 100 per cent since last October. To handle this load, the Marin County chapter employs two specially trained workers — Miss Virginia McGregor, and Mrs. John Shortridge. The former holds a Masters Degree in Social Work. In addition to that staff, the chapter also has the volunteer services of eight trained social welfare aides.

SERVICES TO the armed forces and veterans is the primary obligation of the American National Red Cross and is so designated by act of Congress.

Although it responds to requests made by the Department of Defense, the American National Red Cross receives no government subsidy or support. It is supported solely by voluntary contributions, and in the Bay Area, chapters receive the major portion of their financial support from the United Bay Area Crusade.

It represents then, crusade and Red Cross authorities point out, one concrete means by which the people on the home front can demonstrate their support of th men in Viet Nam.

IN FARAWAY VIET NAM, the American serviceman's best friend in time of emergency is often the American Red Cross field director who serves as a connecting link between the fighting man and the Red Cross contacts at home with his family.

Broadway's Kevin Kelly Is Brother Christopher Today

He Finds Religious Life More Satisfying Than The Theater

By MARGARET VICKERS

One week he was Kevin Kelly, baritone and leading musical comedy star, a very bright light on Broadway's Great White Way.

The next week he was Brother Christopher O.P., a novice in the Dominican Order of Preachers.

"It was almost that quick," the soft-spoken Brother recalls. He shifts in the straight chair and adjusts the folds of the copious, white Dominican habit as his fingers reach for the rosaries by his side.

THAT WAS four and a half years ago.

Now in residence at the Dominican Priory in Ross and on the teaching staff at Marin Catholic High School, Brother Christopher has again opened up the grease paint and dusted off an old routine, a medley of nostalgic Tin Pan Alley tunes. Not for a personal appearance at Bimbo's in San Francisco, where his professional musical career ended, but as a part of the second annual student hootenanny to be presented next weekend at Marin Catholic.

Appearing with the singing Brother will be Rev. Richard Wingell, professor of English at Marin Catholic. Rated as an extremely fine musician with a Master's Degree in Music, Father Wingell will play piano along with Santos Beloy, professional drummer and guitarist.

LAST YEAR'S event was a "shot in the dark," Brother Christopher explains. Marin Catholic High had never staged a hootenanny before, yet the show played to a standing-room-only attendance of more than 1,600 and still more people were turned away.

Encouraged by such an overwhelming response, two performances next Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. have been slated for the 1966 event in the school gymnasium.

The two hour musical hoedown will feature the glee club, rock'n' roll combo "The Choosen Few" and several dance numbers. Returning to the show for the second time will be College of Marin students Jim Monroe and Steve Mazzio, singers and guitarists, and Mauriene Lee of Marin Catholic. New MCHS talent includes Bill Houston, Joene Denning, and Barbara Burch of Stockton.

FACULTY MEMBERS and Sisters of the Holy Names, Sister Rose Genevive is directing the glee club and Sister Rose Ann is designing the original stage sets.

As he did for the first hootenanny, Brother Christopher is again handling the dual jobs of producer and director. Daily rehearsals have been in full swing for many weeks and, according to the six-foot, two-inch, blue-eyed, youthful Brother, "We really have some great talent."

Maybe it's in the cards for some of his current young troupers to experience the same exciting, although demanding, climb up the ladder to success as did their director.

IN HIS BRIEF four years in show business, the fledgling from Minnesota appeared in five Broadway shows, played the title role in "L'il Abner" for nine months, starred with Buster Keaton in "Once Upon A Mattress" and toured with several national companies. His last swing around the country found him playing El Gallo, the male lead in "The Fantasticks."

Between musical comedies, there were TV engagements, five appearances on the Sergeant Bilko show, and a "Hit Parade" booking that led to a three month tour of the Orient co-sponsored by the State Department and Lucky Strike. Singers Jill Corey and Tommy Leonetti were also in the cast.

Eventually, Hollywood caught up with Kevin Kelly. Originally signed for the lead in "The King Must Die," Kelly was selected in a try-out session that had attracted more than a 100 contestants.

"They kept me under wraps. Actually, it never came to anything because I left the stage," Brother Christopher explains. "But after one visit to Hollywood and many meetings, I decided I never really wanted anything to do with movies. There you are just a commodity, something to be bought and sold. On Broadway you have to have a talent. But Hollywood is learning that now and consequently has begun to turn more and more to the Broadway professional player."

IT'S A LONG leap from Minnesota to New York, an exhilarating, tenuous and frightening journey, but it is the only way to fly if your destination is Broadway. That was why, after two years at the University of Indiana, Kelly gave up his voice scholarship.

Anxious to get on with the career he had dreamed of and worked toward since a small boy, he headed for the "big-time."

"It's a vicious circle. Agents don't want you until you're somebody, and you can't be somebody until you've had a job." But after six months, the break finally came with "The Merry Go-Rounders," a quartet booked to play the county fair circuit for nine months doing four shows a day—exhausting, but a real challenge for a 19-year-old.

NOT ALL BOOKINGS last as long: "The Vamp," for instance, although much touted and heavily backed, lasted only 90 performances despite starred the redoubtable Carol Channing.

The fact that Miss Channing had mentioned that flop on her recent TV appearance surprised Brother Christopher: "Generally she liked to forget it."

He never wanted to play the nightclubs, but after "The Fantasticks" concluded its San Francisco run at the Geary, Kelly landed a three-month engagement at Bimbo's. Although a choice spot with good pay, "it meant three shows a night, finishing up at 2 a.m. and not getting to bed much before 6, just when the rest of the world was getting up."

RECOVERING FROM this upside down schedule was one of his hardest adjustments as a Dominican novice. Its recollection still brings an irrepressible yawn right in the middle of a sentence.

But these days, with his disciplined, efficient order of duties, his further studies for the Brotherhood will culminate with the taking of solemn vows in 1969; his role as a teacher of English, speech and fine arts—a course he started this year—his new life, Brother Christopher affirms, offers more of a challenge than show business ever did.

"The brotherhood, which is the oldest form of monastic life in the Church, always attracted me. It offers both the monastic and communal life as well as a chance to work with people. The great ideal of the Dominicans is to combine apostolic work with the contemplative life, for they believe that only after one's self is in order can real service be offered to others."

TO SOME THE decision to change careers so abruptly may sound impulsive. Actually he came close to entering a religious order soon after his conversion to Catholicism when still a high school senior.

In a predominately Lutheran community of Hibbing, the fact that he chose the Catholic religion almost ostrasized him. Severely criticized by his teachers "for the scandal I was bringing on my parents and two younger brothers," Kevin Kelly nevertheless went ahead on his own course.

As for teaching, Brother Christopher rates it as great. "I really love it. And I have my superiors to thank for giving me the opportunity."

SUDDENLY MORE excited about the advantages of dealing with boys than recalling a star-studded past, the Brother names "seeing boys mature and develop into men with great ideals" as one of teaching's most rewarding advantages.

"Besides that," he added with a wide smile, "every teacher has to ham it up a little. In the classroom I'm still the star of the show. I still have an audience. And don't think I don't remind the students of that — often!"

NOW BROTHER CHRISTOPHER, a novice in the Dominican Order of Preachers and a teacher at Marin Catholic High School, one-time Broadway star Kevin Kelly listens to some of the talent which will take part next weekend in the school's annual hootenanny which he directs. The instrumentalists are Bill Houston, left, and Jim Monroe. (Independent-Journal photo)

IN HIS DAYS as a musical comedy star, Kevin Kelly played the lead role of El Gallo with the national touring company of "The Fantasticks." At top, he is seen with Tom Ayre in a scene from that show.

Young Astronomers At Kent School Study The Heavens

Junior High Students Exhibit Enthusiasm For Their Projects

By LEE CADWALLADER

Would you believe that junior high school kids can get as excited over the activities of their astronomy club as they can over their football and basketball games?

No?

Well, members of the A. E. Kent School Astronomical Society in Kentfield have proven the point by becoming more involved in plans for making a telescope or construction of an observatory to house it than in any of their other extracurricular activities.

ONE STUDENT, Mike Kast, with the help of his father, William G. Kast, has already built his own six-inch lens reflector telescope. It took seven months to grind the mirror by hand.

These two, plus the 14 others in the club, got "stars in their eyes" while studying astronomy as part of their regular curriculum under the guidance of teacher John Richard.

MIKE KAST, 14, comes by his interest naturally as a member of a science-oriented family. So it didn't take much encouragement from school or home to cause him to expand his knowledge and implement his dreams of owning a telescope.

When they gather on the grounds of John Richard's home for a Friday night "star party," one senses something of the same excitement as when a similar age group gathers for a football rally.

THERE'S THE noise of cars arriving and discharging passengers. Shouts of welcome and direction follow. Then ensues the usual milling around of parent-chauffers, curious younger brothers and sisters, and prospective new members (among this last group a number of girls who are evidently delighted to see for themselves that this is truly where the boys ARE).

The society is well organized. They have five typewritten pages of by-laws patterned on those used by the Marin Astronomical Society, and business-like requirements for membership.

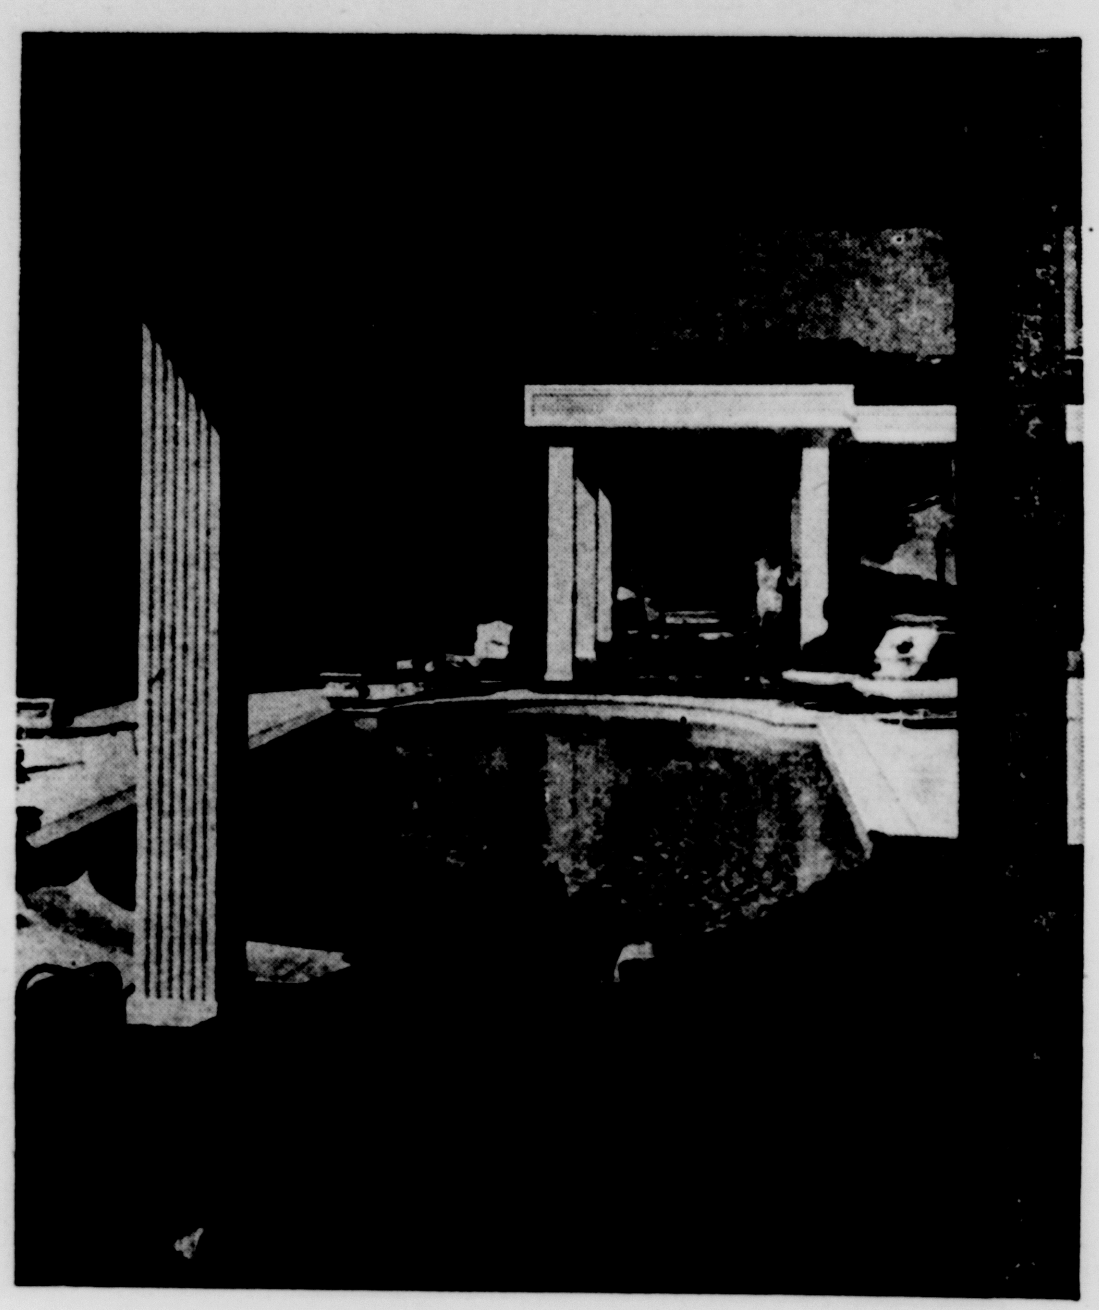

The security of good organization and well defined goals show up in the easy, confident manner in which the members set up their instruments and proceed with their observations, nonchalantly answering questions from their visitors.

SOME PARENTS look first to Richard, the teacher, when they have a question. Finding him occupied for the moment, they decide to take a chance on asking a member. The slack-jawed look of amazement on their faces soon turns to profound respect when they realize from the member's answer what a fund of knowledge the youths have acquired.

By the close of the evening, when everyone gathers in Richard's recreation room to share hot chocolate and cookies and witness the fund-raising raffle, the adults realize they have seen education in its best form. The kids are mostly aware that this has been a "real fun time."

The members of the junior astronomical society look forward to grinding the club's lens on a grinding machine borrowed from the adult Marin Astronomical Society. And then they will try to figure how to raise the money for an observatory.

BULLETIN: FIRST 10 MONTHS OF 1965 IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA*

WHY ANTHONY?

We believe that much of the overwhelming preference for Anthony results from the recommendation of satisfied pool owners. Here are some of the reasons:

DEPENDABLE ACCESSORIES. At our 15 acre facility we manufacture our own top-quality line of pool parts and accessories. Our reputation for the dependability of our filters, heaters, water purifier, and pool cleaner—plus the assurance of service on all equipment from one source—is one of the big reasons many people recommend Anthony Pools.

FINANCIAL BACK-UP. The warranties of a builder or manufacturer depend on his ability to back them up. Ask any builder for his financial statement. Here is Anthony's current financial back-up: Cash, $1,265,567; Total net worth, $3,050,832.

IT'S EASY TO JOIN THE POOL OWNER SET. On ten-year financing, a complete pool can be yours for very low monthly payments. For example, a loan balance of $2000 runs only $26.67 a month. Is it any wonder so many young families are adding an Anthony pool to their way of life?

*Per most recent building permits reported by independent reporting service, Anthony also built more pools than all franchised pool builders combined!

Scanning The Skies

THE OCCASION HERE is one of the "star parties" held by the A. E. Kent Astronomical Society at the home of their teacher and adviser. John Richard. Brothers, sisters and parents of the young astronomy devotees attend to share in the enjoyment of scanning the skies through high-powered telescopes. It is both social and an education experience.

AFTER LECTURING to the young astronomy enthusiasts at the Kent School, Dr. Charles F. Hagar, associate professor of astronomy, San Francisco State College and Planetarium, adjusts his Tinsley Matsukor telescope so that the students can use it for a view of the moon.

ENGAGED IN setting up the declination axis for the mount of the large telescope built by Mike Kast are Mike, left, and Tedd Woods, both members of the astronomical society. The mount has a controlled vertical swivel.

THE BOOK PAGES

By DON KEOWN

A WOMAN OF THE PEOPLE by Benjamin Capps, Duell, Sloan and Pearce, 242 pages, $4.95.

William H. DuBay is the young and outspoken Southern California priest whose views on the need for reform and modernization within the Roman Catholic Church have brought him into conflict with his superiors and ultimately to suspension from his clerical duties.

Those controversial views are set forth in the small book "The Human Church," and, apparently, it was this publication that brought the confrontation to a head.

Most publicized of Father DuBay's proposals is the one for a union of church workers — priests, nuns and lay employees —to deal with the administrators. This, while representative of the overall content, is but one of many suggestions, and hardly the most important.

The basic contention of Father DuBay — and those who support him — is that the Church should be concerned with fundamental human needs and involved in the social issues of the day, subordinating the liturgical to the humane. The Church, he believes, should be vitally concerned with and actively engaged in secular matters, relating its worship of the Divinity to the theological thesis that God is a God of justice, love and brotherhood.

Working from this base, Father DuBay then launches a sweeping series of proposals for the modernizing and humanizing of the Church's structure and interests.

As a non-Catholic, we found the priest's basic assumptions and ideas for implementing them interesting and provocative. But their acceptance or rejection is a matter for Roman Catholics. On a broader scale, we reacted to the priest's ideas as applied to religion generally and to life itself as stimulating, and indeed inspiring. He offers one of the most persuasive arguments we have yet encountered on behalf of social involvement and commitment by the religious person.

Like many ardent advocates, Father DuBay at times seems to be carried away by his enthusiasms. For instance, has unionism really been the biggest single factor in growth of citizenship and democracy? How about, for instance, the free public school system? And in his impatience for greater speed, Father DuBay seems to fail to give proper recognition to his Church for the tremendous progress it has already made since Pope John XXIII infused a whole new spirit into the Roman Catholic hierarchy. Today's Catholic Church seems anything but the static defender of the status quo its critics once pictured it as being.

Nor does Father DuBay seem fully appreciative of the contributions which the centuries-old traditions of the Church can continue to make, even within a modernized framework .

But, indubitably, the DuBay book is an important one that will heighten a debate already under way. And which may well cause other faiths besides his own — and individuals — to enter into a period of re-examination of conscience.

THE PUBLISHER is exceedingly high on Benjamin Capp's new book, "A Woman of the People," while fully aware that it is bucking public apathy, even antagonism, toward the western novel as formula stuff.

It is to be hoped that Duell, Sloan and Pearce overcome the handicap, for the book is, indeed deserving of a large audience. It is far from the usual cowboy-Indian yarn.

"A Woman of the People" is a frontier girl captured as a child by the proud, fierce Comanches and reared as one of their own. Her adjustment is a slow, reluctant process. In telling of it, Texan Capps also tells us much, not only of the western America of that time, but also of the world today where cultural differences are often so dangerously and needlessly divisive.

But what impressed us most about the novel is its value as pure social history. It offers a perceptive, graphic, utterly realistic canvass of what these Indians and their nomadic life was like. We are given neither the wily, treacherous, bloodthirsty savage, nor the noble, stoic, long-suffering redman that are the two extremes to which we have become accustomed in movies, television shows and popular literature. Capps' characters are people—real people — with all the conflicting characteristics that make up the human being, fitted, of course, into one particular set of traditions and customs.

A reader can acquire a deeper, truer appreciation of and feeling for Indian life from this fictional piece than from half a dozen non-fiction tomes on the same subject.

The book has value and interest for all ages. But we feel it has special benefits for younger readers—the high school ages—to offset the one-dimensional, twisted, debased portraits of the American Indians they have encountered in films, on TV and in shallower books.

There is nothing flashy or extraordinary about Capps' writing style. But it has the merit of simplicity that sometimes seems a bit old-fashioned in its attention to structure and the rules of rhetoric. The result is a rather refreshing change of pace from today's continuing experimentation with narrative tools and techniques.

But it is the uncompromisingly honest, down-to-earth picture of Indian existence in those last few years before the flood of white men finally engulfed so much of the redman's culture that is the book's prime attraction. Already well recognized for two previous western novels that placed that much abused genre on an unusually high plane, Capps has achieved a yet more impressive triumph with "A Woman of the People."

JOHN P. KENNEALLY, maintenance training superintendent for Pan American World Airways, who way back in 1951 wrote a booklet on television set care and repair, has now authored a similar pamphlet on musical systems entitled "Radio, Hi-Fi and Stereo for Everyone" (Coleman Publications, 50 cents).

It offers easy-to-understand guidance on the purchase, repair and maintenance of equipment ranging from the pocket-size transistor radio to the most elaborate hi-fi and stereo combinations. There's also information for those about to embark on ham radio as a hobby.

Perhaps the most valuable inclusion is a set of trouble-shooting charts to help the do-it-yourselfer uncover the source of his hi-fi difficulties.

FOR HOBBYISTS, Kalmbach Publishing Co. of Milwaukee has published in magazine format "Bridges & Buildings for Model Railroading."

It's edited by Willard V. Anderson and the staff of Model Railroader and includes step-by-step directions on the construction of model bridges and buildings, plus a smattering of history and a bit of basic engineering. It sells for $2.50.

FAWCETT HAS launched its new Premier Masterworks paperback series with four reissues of classics — Jane Austen's "Persuasion," Emily Bronte's "Wuthering Heights," Charles Dickens' "Hard Times" and Fedor Dostoevsky's "The Possessed." All sell for 60 cents except the Dostoevsky which is priced at 95 cents.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE CATCH by John Boland, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 192 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The grandmother, father and son that run Aarolie Castle as a resort-hotel are obviously all mad. And in their madness lies the reason why the trout of its loch are monstrous in size.

This is a macabre mixture of humor and murder in the pattern of "Arsenic and Old Lace." At times, Boland seems to be carried away, and to verge on farce. But on the whole, the effort is successful — suspenseful and entertaining. The atmosphere is superb and the romantic touch well-done.

Some New Reading For The Juniors

The Marin husband and wife team of writer Edith Thacher Hurd and illustrator Clement Hurd have produced yet another impressive picture book, "The Day the Sun Danced" (Harper, $3.50), celebrating the arrival of spring. For the preschool, kindergarten, first grade set, it tells how the woodland animals await the "something" that they knew was about to happen. Hurd's woodcuts begin with wintry black and white scenes, and take on a burst of color as the rising sun brightens the sky and foliage enriches the landscape.

Frank Baum's forever green classic "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz" (Dutton, $3.50) has been published as part of the Children's Illustrated Classic series. Drawings are by the veteran B. S. Bire. "The best-loved fairytale ever written by an American," Martin Gardiner says of this story. Which is just about all you can say. Every child should have one of the several versions in his or her room. And this is a good and complete one.

In "The Story of the Liberty Bell," (Children's Press, $2.50), Natalie Miller gives an accurate account of how the liberty bell came to be in the child's language, and with illustrations on every page. It will help instill pride in his country in the small reader.

"The Adventures of Tom Leigh" by Phyllis Bentley (Doubleday, $3.25) is set in 18th Century Yorkshire. Tom is a stranger in that rugged country, newly orphaned. The boy's adventures as he makes his own way in life will excite both boys and girls of the 11 and 12-year bracket, but especially the former. The historical and geographical background is very well done.

Kittens have an unfailing appeal for children and especially for little girls. Writer Betty Beegehold and artist Mary Chalmers take full advantage of this happy circumstance in their "Three To Get Ready" (Harper, $1.95). Part of the publisher's reasonably-priced "I Can Read" series, this tells with warmth and humor the story of three bouncy, inquisitive little kittens, and their wise and understanding mother. It's lively and entertaining.

Both the Old and New Testaments have been retold by the German novelist Stefan Andres in "The Bible Story" (McGraw-Hill, $7.95). In this form it is one story—something for the whole family to read with the children—and with Andres supplying linking passages from sources other than the Bible. The large book is beautifully illustrated by Gerhard Oberlaender. Translation is by Michael Bullock. An impressive project.

"White Water, Still Water" (Doubleday, $2.95) is a robust adventure yarn by former San Francisco Chronicle reporter J. Allan Bosworth for junior high school-age boys. Farm boy Chris Holm aboard his home-made raft is swept downriver into the wilderness. When he finally makes it to shore, he is confronted with the task of making his way back home, barefoot and equipped only with a pocketknife, before winter catches him. Not only does Bosworth make his story exciting, but he also succeeds in transmitting onto paper the fascination of untamed, unspoiled country.

"Windwagon Smith" (Prentice-Hall, $3.75) by Ennis Rees is a fable told in verse about a man named Smith who built a prairie schooner with a sail and a rudder. The illustrations by Peter P. Plasencia are livelier than the tale. However, the final scene in which Smith takes the town folk for a test run is full of action.

One For Mothers As A Kitchen Aid

COOKING WITH CHEESE by Better Homes & Gardens editors, Meredith, 92 pages, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The experienced editorial staff of Better Homes & Gardens knows very well that appearance is as important as content in the acceptance of a cookbook.

Thus their publications are invariably carefully arranged, attractively designed and enlivened by a lavish and effective use of color illustrations. The newest, "Cooking With Cheese," has all these attributes, plus a splendid selection of recipes that have the endorsement of the Better Homes Test Kitchen.

The dishes range from cheese-based appetizers and dips through hearty, zesty main dishes to desserts, both elaborate and simple. Sandwich, vegetable, soup, sauce and bread treatments are included as well.

The very variety of cheeses easily available to us creates an opportunity that no cook desirous of serving her family interesting and nutritious fare can afford to overlook.

An added attraction is the inclusion of a great deal of informative material on the different cheeses—their origins, their characteristics, their best uses, their care, their best wine accompaniment, etc.

Prehistoric Path

When the Ice Age sent its glaciers crunching southward across the North American continent, there was already a well defined trail by which animals (and perhaps men) migrated from continent to continent, far up toward the Arctic.

The trail led southward along the Rockies, backbone of North America. Paleontologists have found the fossils, bones and spearheads of the animals and men that traveled it through the ages.

This was the "Great North Trail," of which Montana author Dan Cushman writes in the latest of McGraw-Hill's American Trails series.

Against the background of this prehistoric trail, he tells of the Indian migrations, the buffalo, the coming of the "longknives," the cattle trail, and the recurrent rushes to new "El Dorados" as strikes of gold and silver were made along the trail all the way from the Southwest to the Klondike. At last, he finds man has all but obliterated the great trail with barbed wire fences, dams impounding and diverting water—so that only bits and pieces of it may be traveled any more.

Cushman is at his best in those parts of "The Great North Trail" that deal with its portion in Montana and across the line into Canada—for this is the country he knows best. His brief account of Henry Plummer and the lawlessness that led to the Montana vigilantes is one of the best I have read.

Within historic times, man has not followed the Great Trail down from the north. He has, instead, moved from east to west and south to north to fill the continent. But the trail is none the less real, and has provided Cushman with the setting for an epic tale of history and high adventure.

A Problem Area

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE AND CHINA by A. T. Steele, McGraw-Hill, 325 pages, $7.50. Reviewed by Larry Kramer Jr.

"The American People and China" is one of the initial volumes in the Council on Foreign Relations series on "The United States and China in World Affairs." It fills a great void and should be required reading for every thoughtful American.

Its purpose is to describe the current state of public and leadership opinion about China; to show how these bodies of opinion developed and to outline constructive steps for the future.

The author is a newspaperman with 18 years of experience on the Chinese mainland. He makes use of public opinion polls, supplemented by several hundred interviews of his own.

He found a great shortage of facts, but no lack of feeling at all levels. According to one poll, in the summer of 1964 28 per cent of the American public did not know that the Communists now rule the Chinese mainland!

Generally, the author found the public to be more flexible than the politicians or the diplomats in their willingness to consider changes in U.S. attitudes and actions. The public is overwhelmingly in favor of increased communication and contact with the mainland Chinese.

The problem of informing both the general public and of developing specialists who can accumulate and evaluate the information we need has been complicated by the residual effects of the McCarthy-McCarran era. China specialists in the universities and government became disgusted or timid. Many left the field or buried themselves in non-controversial minutiae. As a result it has been necessary to rebuild a corps of experts, and this job is still in process.

One great gap exists in the teaching about China and the Far East in our schools and colleges. The book suggests that we must break out of the educational straitjacket that assumes that for American students the history of the world beyond the United States and Western Europe is inconsequential and irrelevant.

Furthermore, "The American People and China" raises some pertinent but touchy questions which we must face objectively if we are to develop an effective China policy. These include:

1. How do we deal with China's desire for status as a world power?

2. What is the future of Taiwan?

3. What should be the objectives of our China policy?

4. How can we better understand China's point of view about the U.S. and the rest of the world?

Master Musician

THE ESSENCE OF MUSIC AND OTHER PAPERS by Ferruccio Busoni, Dover Publications, paperback, 204 pages, $1.50. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

This slightly corrected re-publication of the first 1957 edition is an indication of the revival of interest in this spectacular figure in the history of Western music, probably occasioned by this year being the centennial of his birth.

Remembered mostly now as a mere arranger, Busoni was considered the greatest pianist of his time and perhaps the mightiest technician on that instrument of all time, as well as an important composer. Poet and mystic, he was also a gifted writer on aesthetics of music, a critic, and a musician who struck a deadly blow to the Romantic style and inspired the modern approach to the piano.

This volume is made up of Busoni's most important critical essays, reviews, letters and notes grouped according to subject matter. They deal with such topics as technical devices of the "new music," experimental techniques, new concepts of orchestration and technical evaluation of major musicians of the past, as well as his contemporaries.

A Love Story

KIT LARKIN by Ramona Stewart, Doubleday, 284 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Jean Langham.

Down, down from the Nevada mountains and out of Hawk Canyon rode Kit Larkin in the back of the old pickup. She was wild, intense, and suspicious in the strange town, having been brought up by a drunken father and uncle.

It is easy to pass off Mrs. Stewart's novel as pure Saturday Evening Post material (the old image) for it is just about that. She has written considerably for the slick magazines and short story collections.

However, it is a most engrossing and skillfully constructed book, the product of careful and practiced writing. The characters are more than stereotypes, the drama is more than melodrama. It is good reading and reluctantly put down.

Every once in a while, there is nothing like a good, heart-tugging love story.

Drury Disappoints

THAT SUMMER by Allen Drury, Coward-McCann, 293 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

It seems incredible that it was written by Drury after his 1960 Pulitzer Prize for "Advise and Consent." One would find it more believable if we were told this was his first attempt at a novel.

The story involves a major who accepts the use of a friend's cabin in an exclusive mountain vacation community. The author hopes we will be concerned over the invasion of his privacy ——but his characterizations are so shallow that we never can decide whether he has Rock Hudson or Maurice Chevalier in mind for this small drama.

No attempt is made to establish this as a period piece, so conversation sprinkled with "hunky-dory" and reference to "Madam LaZonga" only serve to start speculating anew about how old this manuscript is.

It is far from being escapist literature. One is always conscious of author and editor working desperately to make something out of nothing.

Classic Combat

THE DUEL: A HISTORY OF DUELLING by Robert Baldick, Clarkson N. Potter Inc., 203 pages, $8.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The beginnings of duelling are lost in antiquity, but it attained official standing in the year 501, when Gundebald, king of the Burgundians, legally established trial by combat.

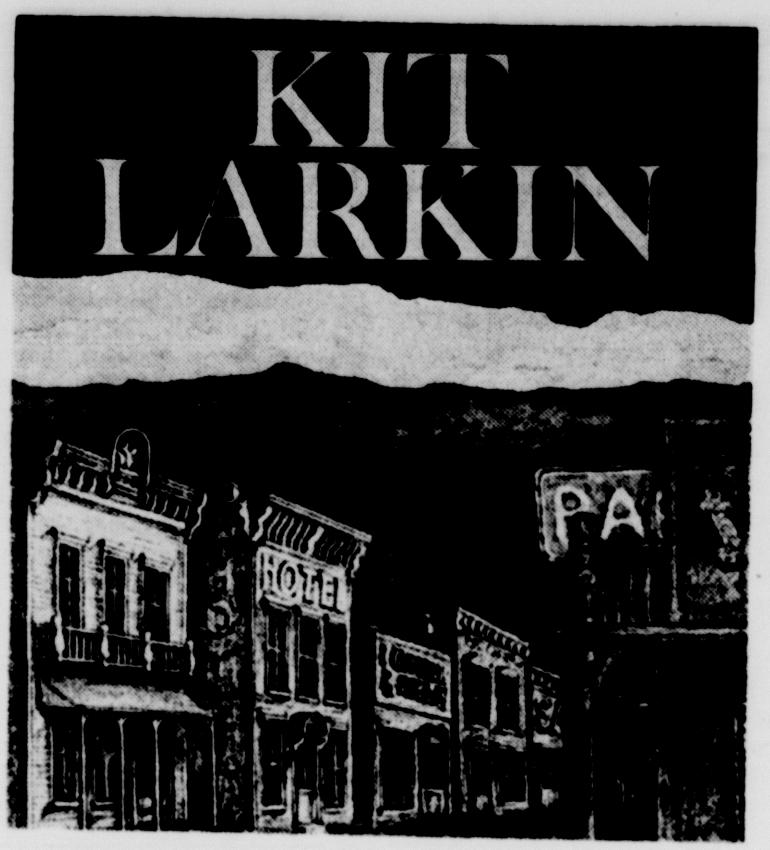

From that point, Robert Baldick traces it in his delightfully illustrated "The Duel: A History of Duelling."

He follows it in its various forms: The judicial duel (trial by combat), the duel of honor, and the duel of chivalry. He describes the rise and fall of duelling in France, Britain, America, and other countries. He tells of women duelists, and of unusual duels—such as that between a man and a dog fought in France in 1400 as a trial by combat.

Just when is personal combat between two people a duel, and when is it merely a fight? The duel, historically, calls for certain forms. Baldick details them. But he is not always consistent with his own rules. Some of the duels he describes appear to have been no better than brawls, without challenge, seconds, or the other classic pageantry.

His history is fascinating, however. The duels range through a wide variety. Included is one in California: The famous Broderick-Terry duel fought on the sands of what is now Daly City.

San Rafael Park— A Builder's Pride

Daniel Schwartz' Perma-Bilt Enterprises has been responsible for the construction of more than 7,500 homes in Northern California.

And the president of the busy developer-planning firm regards the new San Rafael Park on Lucas Valley Road a half mile off Highway 101 as the most successful project to date.

"Of all the communities we have created in the past decade," he says, "none has combined the natural attributes of location with the most advanced concepts of home design and construction as beautifully as San Rafael Park."

SEVEN MODEL homes, ranging from three to five bedrooms, and with two and three baths, are open for public inspection from 10 a.m. till dark daily. Prices begin at $32,950.

Other special attractions include custom lighting fixtures, well insulated ceilings, huge master bedroom suites, abundant closet space and hand-split cedar shake roofs.

A site within the community has been earmarked for an elementary school, and there is also an area reserved for a shopping center.

THE NEW community is located in rolling ranchland that provides a picturesque setting for the new homes.

San Rafael Park is, Schwartz says, the pride and joy of Perma-Bilt.

A RUGGED but homey atmosphere has been created in this man's study through the use of ponderosa pine paneled walls, a beamed ceiling and a wall of bookshelving and storage cabinets. The hunt table serves as a desk, and there are leather easy chairs and sofa for comfort.

Dad Deserves Den That's Comfortable

When it's time to pay bills or the man from Internal Revenue, there's no doubt about who's the head of household.

But other days, dear old Dad seems to occupy the lowest rung on the ladder. He's elbowed away from the TV when it's time for Batman and eased out of the living room if a lady's bridge group or a gang of teens is expected.

Sometimes he's even ousted from his very own workshop when the spouse hits a creative streak and wants to play with ceramics.

He Needs A Retreat Of His Own

TO SOOTHE their ego, establish a household status symbol, and provide a private lair for themselves, a good many men now demand a den in their home. It may not be as grand as the man's library of yesteryear, but it's just as sacrosanct.

It's a good use of space, too, providing a permanent home for the many family records that must be kept in order, as well as for camera equipment, a stamp collection, and so forth. Properly designed, the den also functions well as a guest room, with sleeping space provided by a sofa bed.

Interestingly enough, most modern men want a den decorated in the homey, masculine manner of times past: Mellow wood paneling, a leather chair and ottoman—preferably red — plenty of bookshelving and cupboard space, and a carpet that's warm to the eye and soft underfoot.

FOR THE paneling, a favorite choice is burnished ponderosa pine. It pleases a man's taste because it is neither too dark nor too light, neither red nor yellow. It hits the mid-point: a true, warm brown.

Tongue-and-groove panel boards, which are easy to handle if the man intends to do the work himself, can be purchased in a knot-free grade or one that displays a few, or many, knots.

Traditionally, pine paneling was waxed and hand-buffed, and that finishing formula can be followed today, using beeswax or one of the modern products.

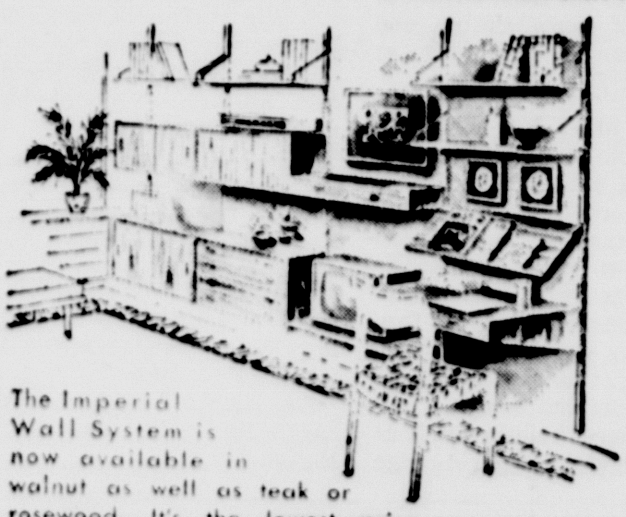

IT'S A GOOD deal easier, however, to use a clear plastic-base varnish or lacquer which is brushed on like paint.

The recommended procedure is to apply two coats of high gloss varnish for body, then end with a coat of matte-finish varnish. The result closely simulates the appearance of hand-buffed wax, but the finish is hard and non-absorbent.

The paneling should be dusted with a soft cloth every few months. However, an oily soot film can build up on the wood, just as it will on any other wall surface. Usually a number of years will have passed before such a film is noticeable.

At that time, when the paneling appears dull or to have lost its inner light, a good furniture cleaner will restore the pine to its original mellow glow.

That Pesky Tank Can Cost A Lot In Wasted Water

That pesky bit of plumbing known as a flush tank, water tank or just plain toilet tank is still being used in a large majority of homes in the United States.

One reason why so many tanks are in a state of disrepair is that they can continue to work fairly efficiently even when something is wrong. Meanwhile, however, millions of gallons of water are being wasted by the continuous dripping or flowing of water from the tank into the bowl.

The float is attached to a horizontal rod which stretches from right to left near the top of the tank. When the float loses its buoyancy, it fails to shut off the valve at the top of the supply pipe. Water keeps rising in the tank and pours into the overflow tube, a long vertical tube usually about midway in the tank, sometimes a little to the left.

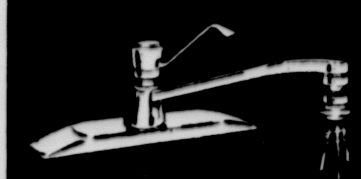

THIS OVERFLOW tube is very important. If it were not there, water would continue to rise in the tank and spill onto the floor. Instead, the water goes into the overflow tube.

When the tank is operating properly, the level of water in the tank will stop before it reaches the top of the tube.

To check the float, unscrew it from the horizontal rod and shake it. If there is water in it, replace it with a new one. If it apparently has no water in it and appears to be in sound condition, bend the horizontal rod slightly downward. Do this with both hands and work carefully so as not to throw the tank mechanism out of alignment. Replace the float and flush the tank.

Landscaping For A Sleepy Hollow Home

THIS WOOD DECK designed by landscape architects Katy and Paul Steinmetz for the Jerry Webb home in Sleepy Hollow offers an attractive transition between house and the pool level. The angle of the pool serves to separate the shallow end from the activity of divers. And for coolness as well as a touch of green, the Steinmetzes included a small lawn in their plans. Concrete, wood and grass all blend to create variety.

FOR THE walkway of the Webb home, the Steinmetzes came up with this interesting design. Exposed concrete stepping stones for firm footing have been laid in a bed of gravel. Header boards serve to keep the gravel confined. (Photos by Ken Molino)

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✔ Check your nursery for early spring-flowering trees and shrubs, and make your selection while the plants in containers are in bloom. You may still find some very late blooming varieties bareroot. If not, they will be available in containers.

✔ Continue to set out the perennial vegetables — artichokes, asparagus and rhubarb. Nurseries have flat-grown plants of brocolli, cabbage and cauliflower.

✔ Roses may be planted now. You still may find a good selection of the best varieties bareroot, at your nursery, but get them into the ground at once.

✔ If you would like to grow your own citrus fruits, check with your nurseryman for the ones that do best in your area. This is the time to plant them. Give them a warm, sunny, sheltered spot where they don't get water too often. Good drainage is necessary.

Droop Prevention

African violet leaves may be kept from drooping over the sill of the pot by slipping over the rim a decorative paper plate from which the center has been cut. This will help keep the foliage upright and brighten the pot.

The Azalea Is A Showoff

A Dazzling Display Of Blooms, And Then Glossy, Handsome Foliage

Azaleas are showoffs.

They start their spectacular display early in February when they literally cover themselves with vibrant, dazzling blooms. Then they keep right on with their act until May.

They never seem to get tired. Azalea flowers are as fresh and bountiful two months after the plant starts to bloom as they were when it began.

ONE SPECIMEN in a container can be counted on to serve as a brilliant focal point for months. Several of them planted together in the ground will remain an unbroken mass of color all season long. Then, when their blooms are finally gone, azaleas stay right onstage as the most delightful evergreen shrubs.

There's no awkward off-season for these beauties. With their polished, small-scale foliage and dense, spreading habit of growth, they are well worth featuring in prominent spots even when they are out of bloom.

In fact, in Japan where the azalea is the favorite of every garden, it is frequently kept pruned to low mounds so that it never produces flowers.

HERE IN THE West we wouldn't dream of sacrificing our azalea blossoms. But we should remember when we buy them that we are investing not only in sheets of spectacular bloom in the spring but in superb evergreens as well.

One of the azalea's attractions is its long life. As it ages, its size increases and its beauty at flowering time becomes more incredible. Some azaleas in our country are a century old. Some in Japan are three centuries. So keep in mind when you buy azaleas that you'll be enjoying them for years to come.

However, you don't have to decide on a permanent garden spot when you plant them. Young azaleas thrive on an occasional shaking-up from transplanting; so if you're a renter or a new home owner, don't be afraid to plant them in a temporary spot (or in containers where they thrive for years) to be moved on as your permanent garden takes shape.

IT ISN'T difficult to give azaleas the conditions they need. If you remember that peat moss is the azalea's best friend, you are half way to success.

A mixture of peat moss, leaf mold and topsoil is fine in many areas; but where conditions are extremely hot and dry, planting in pure peat moss is highly recommended. (An easy way to dampen peat moss is to open the bag a day or so before you need it and let water from the hose drip in one drop at a time.)

When planting in the ground, make sure your drainage is good. Azaleas should have cool, moist soil at all times, but water-logged soil will smother the roots. If there's doubt about drainage, raised beds or containers are your best bets.

ALL AZALEAS need some shade and some sun. If they are grown in too shady an area, the plants become weak and spindly and do not bloom as freely. The ideal solution is to put them where they get full sunlight for a short time each day, then filtered light the rest of the time.

North and east sides of buildings or under laths or oak trees are successful spots for Kurume or Belgian Indica Azaleas. The Southern Indicas (Sun Azaleas) grow well planted in full sun. However, they should not be placed where they get reflected heat.

A good general rule with all azaleas is to give them as much sun as they will take without burning leaf or blossoms.

THE BEST azalea setting is likely to be your outdoor living room. Wherever climates are most enjoyable for human beings a better environment for azaleas is created. Azaleas in tubs or raised beds or the ones planted in the ground near an outdoor sitting area are most likely to get the attention of watering and the degree of sun and shade they want.

Choosing azaleas at the nursery is as exciting for the experienced collector as it is for the gardener who's buying his first plant. Spectacular new varieties are constantly being developed, and new ways to use them in the landscape are found every year.

When you visit your nursery now you'll see richly blooming azaleas such as the frosty-white Snow Bird trained into full-headed little patio "trees." Phoenicia (lavender), Southern Charm (deep rose), Brilliant (watermelon red), Chimes (dark red) and that popular favorite Albert and Elizabeth (variegated pink and white) are all fine varieties to be found in this form. These and other varieties are also available as espaliers. Or you might find some trained into an attractive "poodle" form.

FRESH AND FROSTY white flowers cover this handsome container azalea specimen for months. And when, finally the blooming ends, it will still offer polished, graceful evergreen foliage, well worth featuring in a prominent spot. (Photo courtesy of the California Assn. of Nurserymen)

YOU'LL FIND many excellent azaleas, such as the variegated pink-and-white California Sunset, planted in redwood hanging baskets—which is an exciting new use for azaleas in the landscape.

You'll get the best display from azaleas in the garden if you buy three or five or seven of the same variety. Space the plants with only about six inches between the branch tips now, and when they finally get overcrowded you can transplant every other one.

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

NEW PRODUCT — Several years ago, Scott heard of a new transistor development used in spage age marvels. Their research engineers went to work developing its use for their FM tuning circuits. The research was rewarded with the most spectacular advance in FM reception since the development of FM multiplex.

The item researched was the new FIELD-EFFECT TRANSISTOR, a revolutionary new solid-state device which has all the advantages of both tubes and conventional transistors . . . with none of their disadvantages. Transistors do not respond to weaker FM signals. The new FET's respond to considerably weaker signals than tubes or conventional transistors; therefore, an FET designed tuner has greater useable FM sensitivity (ability to bring in weak stations clearly). FET tuning circuits can be designed with a sharper tuning ability than conventional transistors providing better selectivity (ability to discriminate between stations). Since FET's are a solid state device (transistor) they do not require high voltages or heating elements to make them operate as do tubes; therefore, the FET's operate at room temperature without generating any heat that would cause dritting of the tuned circuits. The FET's are truly a distortion free amplifier therefore they pass the signal through without causing extra signals to be developed. This reduces the effect called "cross modulation" to a negligible amount. Cross modulation causes strong FM stations to appear at many places on the dial, thus covering up stations that the listener may want to receive.

This remarkable new device is now being used in the tuning circuit of Scott's new Model 342 FM multiplex Tuner Amplifier. The 342 combines an excellent tuner, a stereo preamplifier (control section) and a powerful stereo power amplifier all on one small compact chassis. The unit provides 65 watts of music power. It is fully transistorized, is very sensitive, has high cross modulation rejection, has low hum, has full range bandwidth, and has very low distortion. The price is less than an equivalent tube type unit.

If you're starting your stereo system or if you want to upgrade your present mono system to stereo, the Scott 342 is an excellent buy. Visit our stereo salon for a demonstration.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

New on the Columbia label:

The contemporary Sir William Walton and the late Paul Hindemith shared a great deal in both style and personal outlook. It is natural that Walton would pay homage to the German composer with this new work (1963) which quotes themes from Hindemith's "Cello Concerto" and also from his most famous work "Mathis der Maler."

I believe the performance of the Second Symphony here is the same one previously released on the Spic label when Szell and his Cleveland group recorded for them. Both it and the variations are good avenues to understanding a deeper and more scholarly side of Walton's art for listeners who have been introduced to him through such lighter works as "Facade" or "Belshazzar's Feast."

These happen to be the only recordings of both works now available, surprisingly enough. Both are for the ballet, are neoclassic in style as their titles might indicate, and more melodic and harmonically rich than many Stravinsky works. Each is also a half-hour in length.

The first two volumes presented arias, anthems and chorales. This one is a departure in that it carries the title "The Birth of Chamber Music in America."

John Antes was born in 1740 near Philadelphia, and served the Moravian church in Europe and Egypt. It was during his missionary work in Egypt that he wrote these Haydnesque trios. They are musically satisfying but not very imaginative.

This lp also seems to be the first on Columbia for The Fine Arts Quartet, or at least members thereof. This should please their many fans, myself included, who would like to see them replace all the performances on disc by Columbia's overrated Budapest Quartet.

The "Espansiva" is easily the most approachable and beautiful of the Danish composer's six symphonies. It is full of rich musical energy and "muscle," and the section employing the wordless vocalise by soprano and tenor with the orchestra is unmatched for sheer beauty.

The old Epic mono disc by the Danish National Orchestra under Bernstein brought his dynamic conducting prowess to this score and scored with even the most guarded Danish critics. The stereo is superb and exciting.

This release is also available on stereotape for the perfectionists.

With Bernstein's recording of the Nielsen Fifth issued earlier on Columbia, and the Vox version of No. 2 and Vanguard disc of No. 4, we are well on our way to having all six symphonies in stereo.
